Regular Spouters - Whales. A Taking Paper - The Sheriff's warrant.

The Best Thing to take Before Singing - Breath.

Why is the comet like a dog's tail? Because of its close proximity to the milky way.

To Sporting Tyrants - Never buy a breech-loader from a pawnbroker.

A Little boy heard his mother tell of eighteen head of cattle being burnt the other night.

A widow said one day to her daughter, 'When you are old you will be dreaming of a husband.'

A Pious man's dictionary defines a sinner to be 'an unpleasant noise produced by restraining the throat for great singers will be paid, and small children punished by the same reply.'

'Elder, that horse you told me is sure in the fore-shoulder.' 'Oh! Deacon? If that is so, I advise you to say nothing about it. You had better let the horse's mal and it would injure the sale of him.'

'Three-and-sixpence per gal' exclaimed Mrs. Partridge, looking over the 'Price Current.' 'Why bless me! what is the world coming to, when the gals are valued at only three-and-sixpence?'

Getting it all - Jolliboy - 'I say, waiter, which did you put in first, the water or the spirits?' 'Whiskey, sir - and you took care to fill it up.' 'Jolliboy - Oh, that's all right - I haven't come to the whiskey yet.'

Proof Positive - 'Not drunk, sir? Why, it is much as you can do now to stand up alone.' 'O'flabery - I stand up, I sit sure and its this black eye I've got by nothing else but standing up to a rival of O'Connell's.'

Oh, the stealer, the beautiful creature, filling the air with melodious notes. Under our hat, and tiskling our nose, and making a hole in our coat, and in through the window, opening the door, filling our chamber and singing the sweeter, ever is found the unstrung snare.

The head of the family is about to get an apple. Mother - 'Say, father, give me a piece.' Daughter - 'Oh, father give me a piece.' 'No - you'll father give me a piece, too?' 'Father (distinguish) - I have the rest of you take the apple and give me a piece.'

A Scotchman, afflicted with the 'last infirmity of noble life,' frequented by day to share in the glories of Nelson. Soon after he was absent, one stormy night, he was ordered sick. The poor fellow looked up with a gasp, and exclaimed, 'Oh, man, it was a tempting of Providence to gang up there on such a night.'

A tall Western girl named Short, long hair, and a certain Mr. Little, while Little, little thinking of Short, loved a little less named Long. To make a long story short, Little proposed to Long, and Short longed to see the girl's face, so she went to Long, and said, 'I have a favor to ask of you, Mr. Little, would you please to let me see your face?'

Along a woman's age is undeniably her own, she does not own it. Which runs the fastest, heat or cold? Heat, because you can catch cold.

What man must have his glass before he can do his day's work? A Glassier. 'Sam, an Julius studying for de minister?'
