Our contemporary is exceedingly anxious to know how Mr. Oliphant was enabled to assure his friends that the Government would support the bill. We can perhaps give the necessary wrinkle. Mr. Oliphant is regarded as a somewhat intelligent gentleman, and having been for sometime in Canada, mixing with intelligent people, he had doubtless heard them say, as the great majority of them did, that the Government, as representing the Liberal party, would certainly not fail to d they could to rid the country of a ance.
