Rouse near Fifth Avenue Sacked at High Noon. From the New York World, July 13. The house of Mr. Matthias Dauser, No. 50 West Eleventh street, was entered by robbers about noon yesterday, who succeeded in carrying away $40,000 worth of Virginia bonds. Mr. Dauser left home about 10 a.m., leaving his wife in charge of the house. At 11 o'clock she was alone, and was looking out of the basement window at the passers-by. About 11:30 three well-dressed young men stopped in front of the house, and one of hem, who had a long narrow book, such as is used by tax gatherers, census-takers, or Croton Board clerks, under his aim, pened it, and appeared to make entries EASONABLE. n it with a pencil, after which he closed book and rang the basement bell, his companions following him into the little yard. Mrs. Dauser did not answer the first summons, but a second ring caused her to reluctantly open the door and admit the strangers, one of whom, according to Mrs. Dauser's helief, said "something about the water." While this explanation was being given one of the men who lagged behind fastened the basement door securely, and just as Mrs. Dauser thought the two ! others were about to pass her to attend to some business, one of them grasped and

The rebbers took Mrs. Dauser to a bed the window's were closed, and that they "Where's them bonds?" Mrs. Dauser said that she knew of no bonds in the house, and that if her visitors were in search of any they had better look after them. Thereupon a pair of steel handcuffs were produced, and Mrs. Dauser was manacled, gagged and blindfolded.

A binding rope was manufactured, and Mrs. Dauser was tied, blind, dumb and helpless, to one of the posts at the foot of the bed. While two men were tying Mrs. Dauser, the third went down stairs and Dauser, the third went down stairs and admitted other men—two or three, Mrs.

Every closet in the basement was turned inside out, and the contents were scattered on the floor. On the sec ond or parlour floor a secretary full of papers was completely gutted, the sofas were stripped of their coverings, the carpets were torn up and the furniture hauled about. On the third floor matters were about the same, and the fourth floor, on which there is a large landing surrounded by four bed rooms and a number of closets bore the appearance of a junk shop doing such a thriving business that the keeper had not time to clear things away. Half a dozen trunks empty, their contents scattered pell-mell mingled with the contents of the closets, which had been forced open with a hatchet, with which the 31st year of Her Majesty's Reign, chap-

Captain Van Dusen detailed Sergeants Young and the same to take effect from the First Ward, Officers Slevin and Henderson to day of July next work up the case, and Central Office Detective Von Gerichton was sent from police headquarters. The officers could not make much out of the case. The "work" appeared to be that of "green-horns," and this opinion is borne out by the fact that no traces of any professional burglarly implements were found, the doors, &c., that were forced bearing the imprint of a hatchet which was used in a very unprofessional manner. No trace of thieves was picked up subsequent to their leaving the house, and they will probably never be discovered. It was, neverther less, ascertained that some months ago a servant (since dead) employed by Mr. Dauzer was detected in the larceny of some coupons, and it is possible that she may have made known the fact that securities were kept in the house to acquaintances who planned and executed the
