RECEPTION.

THE PREMIER'S ARRIVAL -

The meeting held last evening at the City Hall, the object of which was offer to Mr. Mackenzie, on his return from England, a shitable reception, was largely attended by leading citizens, Conservatives as well as Reformers. It is, o course, an easy matter at any time to up # political demonstration; but there was thought be no present occasion. The feeling on the part of the original movers in the matter and prominent citizens who were conferred with was that whatever might be done should be done with a unanimity not broken by the interposition of party lines. Upon this basis the meeting lasnight proceeded to action. The speeches of prominent Reformers and the mixed complexion of the committee chosen may we think, be taken as a guarantee that any doubts of good faith entertained by our Conservative friends may be set at rest We believe that there is no desire on the part of any political supporter of the Pre mier to make party capital out of what it seems to be distinctly understood shall not be held to contribute to that object The non-political character of the demon stration will greatly enhance its value and will promote good feeling. We are glad to be able to make the observation that the Opposition press and prominent Con servative gentlemen of the city are not disinclined under reasonable conditions to give to our friends the pleasing light of their countenance and their valuable as-The public will be kept in formed from day to day of the progress

We need hardly add that Mr. Becker is to be congratulated upon the substanal character of the work he has accomed. He has had many formidable stacles to contend with, but he has over ome them all successfully. It would be ifficult to find a gentleman so capable of aking charge of such a great undertakng as Mr. Becker. At a very early stage f his life he embarked in the business which he has made his profession. He ssisted in the building of the Lachine nd Williamsburg Canals, and was for 1: engaged in canal and railway works in neighbouring Republic, so that he thoroughly acquainted with all the details of the business. The Government, ve believe, have expressed their approsation of the manner in which the work on the St. Anue's Channel is being performed, and we can only hope that he will long be spared to assist in the supervision and building of the public works of the Dominion.
