OTTAWA, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 22, 1875.

For the Premier and Mrs. Mackenzie's dinner party, last night, invitations were issued to His Honor Lieutenant Governor Macdonald, Honourable Attorney General Mowat, Honourable Speaker Christie, and Mrs. Christie, Honourable Mr. Cartwright, Hon. Mr. Laird, Mr. Mayor Featherston, Mr. McNabb, M. P., President of the Provincial Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario, Senator Penny and Mr. D. McDougall, Commissioners for Quebec and Ontario to the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition; Mr. Rae, M. P.; Mr. Ford, Her Majesty's Charge d'Affaires at Darmstadt; Mr. Bergne, of the Foreign Office, London; Mr. Sheriff McKellar, of Hamilton.

THE EXHIBITION.

The Exhibition yesterday gave gratifying evidences of ultimate success. In most departments there was a reasonably full show, while some presented an unusually large representation. The details will be set out fully in our report in another column. It is stated on good authority that very considerable quantities of machinery and other articles intended for the Fair are delayed on the road by the fault of the Grand Trunk. We do not know how nearly accurate this report may be, and we shall be glad to learn that it is unfounded. So far it does not appear that there is any scarcity of lodging accommodation. To-day and to-night, however, will test that matter. The weather yesterday inclined to be showery and in the latter hours of the afternoon it became unpleasantly cold. But, for a Provincial Fair it was very good weather. The cold of last evening affords reasonable ground of hope that the remaining days of the exhibition will be dry at any rate. To-morrow evening at seven, the President, Mr. McNab, M.P., for Glengarry, will deliver the annual address. Mr. McNab will discharge this duty ably and with credit to himself in every respect.

THE SANITARY CONDITION OF THE CITY.

The September number of the Sanitary Journal, published in Toronto, under the able editorship of Dr. Edward Playter, contains a very flattering notice of the letter written to THE TIMES, during the month of August, by Dr. Lynn, our energetic Medical Health Officer, regarding the sanitary condition of the city. The Editor of the Journal regards Dr. Lynn's suggestions on the best mode of disinfecting back premises as valuable, and quotes with endorsation that portion of the communication which refers to the subject. Ottawa must be congratulated upon the professional standing and acknowledged ability of her Medical Health Officer, and he in turn must be pleased to notice that he has not been passed over without recognition in his meritorious attempts to awaken the Corporation to a sense of their duty in regard to sanitary science, even if that body have profited less by his counsels than is to be desired. Let it be here added that the Sanitary Journal ought to be a monthly visitor to every household in the city. The cost is trifling, and the information, given as it is in terms so plain and simple that "he who runs may read," is perfectly invaluable. The September number contains an exceedingly well written paper on the ventilation of sewers and drains, by Dr. Oldwright, Toronto, and another on the disposal and utilization of excreta, both of which might be studied with advantage by those who have charge of the system of drainage and sewerage now being inaugurated here, and might open their eyes in regard to two or three dangers into which they are now running head foremost. We have already pointed out to our City Fathers in the columns of THE TIMES that to drain the excreta into the river is itself a grand offence against the laws of sanitary science which will some day have to be repented of and expiated at great expense. If we are late in having a good system of sewerage in this city—if, indeed, it is a disgrace that the capital of Canada should have approached the close of the nineteenth century before the first attempt at such a thing has been made—we at least have had the benefit of the experience of, it may be said, the whole world to assist us in deciding what plan is the best to adopt. Curiously enough, all this appears to have been lost upon us, and we are asked to believe that in instituting a system which has been discarded in most great European cities, and actually prohibited in Great Britain under the "Pollution of Rivers Act," is a prospective boon for which we and the coming generations ought to be profoundly thankful. It must be admitted that almost anything would be an improvement on the existing state of things, but why we should insist upon polluting the waters of our beautiful Ottawa with the most deadly and destructive of poisons, in defiance of the laws of nature and sanitary science, when scientific research has proved that there are so many ways in which excreta, drawn into a deodorising reservoir may be positively made useful and profitable, it is very hard to conceive. We venture to predict, should Ottawa continue to increase in commercial importance and population in the future as she has done in the past, or even if she maintains an approximate ratio, that before thirty years are past, the whole work now being undertaken at such great cost will have to be undone. It is to be hoped, however, that an agency other than sheer necessity, and one not less potent, will ere then interfere to stop the pollution of rivers generally, the Ottawa amongst the rest. We refer to the strong arm of the law. Something has already been done in that way by preventing the throwing of mill refuse into what are called navigable streams. When the country gets more thickly populated, sanitary considerations will certainly demand a similar policy in regard to the drainage of excrement and sewage into all running streams, especially such as form the source from which any proportion of the people draw water for domestic and general purposes. We commend the present number of the Sanitary Journal to such of our city aldermen and others charged with the administration of our municipal affairs as have an interest in the future good health not only of this city, but the whole country. The questions discussed in it are of graver importance than the majority of those about which the specimen representative at the Council Board gets excited, and fancies his constituents are excited over also. The number is otherwise excellent, containing in particular a set of most excellent rules for the prevention of the spread of typhoid fever and other infectious diseases which from time to time find their way with such fatal effects into even the cleanest houses and most orderly families. These will be found at this particular season of the year almost invaluable.
