THE TORONTO AND MONTREAL RIOTS.

A correspondent of the Toronto Globe, signing himself "Catholic," and hailing from the county of Glengarry, says a word or two in regard to the Toronto and Mon treal riots, respectively, which deserve attention, if only for the purpose of car recting one or two popular errors, of which they are an expression. "Catholic" admits at once the spirit of justice in which the press of Ontario generally have approsched the subject of the Toronto riots He even goes the length of praising Pro test ints and the newspapers they control -although in an indirect was -for their liberality in that instance. The Montreal Sua, in an article, an extract from which was reproduced in these columns a few days ago, does the same thing in a more direct and pointed manner. The assumption that the gurnalists who control the press of Ungario approuched the subject as Protestants, is a great and somewhat dangerous fallacy, which ought not to be permitted to obtain currency without contradiction. Whatever may be be the religious proclivities of those who give tone to the utterances of the newspapers Toronto rioters were based upon reasons which would have been equally applicable have been applied with the same but no greater severity. The fact that Protestants are very generally the conductors of Ontario newspapers, does not make these newspapers in any sense Protestant. They organs, which are supposed to, and gener ally do, discuss public questions on what did their duty in a difficulty which par which deserves any special moral obligation under similar circum-

The other fallacy to which the Globe's easy task, and usually a most thankless correspondent subscribes, with evident the press is not unfrequently a most powerful support to them in improving the quality of the organization without ri ta, and have forfeited the good will of threatening its harmonious existence the extremists on both sides, by condemn Therefore, although we fully understand ing the Montreal riots, also have done the difficulties which beset the selection something for which they ought to be sorry.
