UMBERING OPERATIONS AND vilest exist in the country. In the inter-THE BANKS.

Within the last day or two the story some way got abroad that one of our banks, understood to be largely connected with the leading lumber firms in this city, had determined upon adopting a rigorous policy with regard to the accounts of involved in the lumber business. It was said that the bank in question had, or was about to, "shut down" upon the lumber men.' Most of our readers will understand what, in such a connexion, is comprehended in the phrase "shut down," and not a few would be able in a moment the future the hero of so many to roughly forecast the consequences of ing the business standing of persons and these times, and people have learnt to possible that it might subside without still moves in this mortal sphere—that his be as well to show that there is nothing kind. In the meantime his aspirations

The position of the bank in ques will go back to his editorial chair "a tion towards the lumber interest, we have it on the best authority, is this: With regard to past advances, and liabilities on account of such, the bank will continue its heretofore liberal policy. It will do its best, regarding accounts with respectable lumbering houses as in some important respects a mutual inter est, to carry those accounts to a satisfactory issue. But it has taken a decided stand with respect to further operations and to its chief editor, Mr. Goldwin in the "limits" this season. It will not assist in the making of more lumber to be thrown upon a surfeited market with th effect of lowering the value of that the Nation was the pink of journalistic already on hand to the full extent of the rectitude and civility. It was to be sure, value of that which may be produced in a sort of Ishmaelite, as it could not excess of present stocks.

It will be universally conceded that lumberman seems to shrink, although his to suffer could not help but admire. But good sense must tell him that it is absoaccept the present difficulty, instead of going on to meet the greater one in the distance, to the loss, if not the ultimate ruin, of all concerned, should meet with universal commendation. this policy the bank in question should we think, be cordially assisted by al other banks interested to any extent 1 the lumbering business of the country Absolute suspension of operations in the bush for one or two years will restore the lumber trade, while continuous produc tion for an overstocked and depressed market means simply continuous embar rassment with all its consequences. Since the lumbermen cannot of themselves determine upon and adhere to the radical but only hopeful remedy, it would be well that the banks should take them in hand and exercise over them that control that present circumstances put in their power.

HIGH-TONED JOURNALISM.

strong contrast which as a journalist suggests some consid erations which reflect rather unfavourably upon the combination of an editor and candidate for Parliament in one and the same person. Mr Thomas White is a gentleman known to the public of Canada best and most to his credit as the editor o a newspaper. When first he came fore a constituency as a candidate for the House of Commons, he was rejected by a narrow majority of two. In the strong Liberal County of Wentworth, this was doing very well, and Mr. White was sufficiently encouraged to try again, which he in Prescott in opposition to Mr. Hagar.
