He represented the Germanic Confederation at Rome during the sitting of the Œcumenical Council, acquitting himself in that delicate position in a manner satisfactory to the Teutonic Bishops, and especially to Bismarck, as is abundantly proven by his being the first Minister sent to France after the establishment of friendly relations between the two countries. About this time his Roman despatches were openly published at Vienna, and thereupon he was immediately arrested by Bismarck, on the charge of embezzling and making public State corres. pondence, and imprisoned at Berlin. He was subsequently tried and convicted of making away with certain ecclesiastical documents while at Rome, sentenced to three months' imprisonment, and condemned to pay the costs of the trial From this judgment he appealed to the They will in all probability be very much Fort Edmonton, having been delayed a Supreme Court | of Berlin, but that tribubetter, whoever may next be called upou day by a narrow but deep and rapid nal disposed of the matter by re-affirming to administer their public affairs; much stream, which had to be rafted.
