THE FISHERY COMMISSION.

We last week republished an article by the Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald relating to the claim Canada to compensation for fishery privi leges under the Washington Treaty. This article, although of the sensational type was yet explicit enough to show that is official quarters some apprehension is felt about the appointment of a third Commissioner. The United States Government, having in so many instances over reached Great Britain in dealing with these Colonial questions, was keen to secure the preliminary advantages of a preponderance of American influence on the Commission. Failing to do so, the selection of an umpire from independent sources now threatens to defeat the rational expectation of a partial award. It is just this impartial element in the which disturbs the intensely enough the immense value to them of the Canadian fisheries to which they are secured access by the Treaty of 1871, is sufficiently evidenced by their feverish anxiety about what they absurdly cal their "fishery rights" in our waters, and their willingness to incur the cost and claims. It suits them, however, to deny the value of the concessions they obtain whenever there is any prospect of being obliged to pay some equivalent. This they will no doubt endeavour to do more than ever since the Commis sion they so much dread bids fair to be not altogether to their own liking. We find already that the organ of the New England fishermen, the (spe Ann Advertiser, is pegging away at depre-Advertiser assures us that the least anticipation account of the fisheriers peculiarly American reason for disbelieving the absurd rumours set "United States, arki the Canadians know!
