reaction or depression.

The Cornhill Magazine of April, 1861, says:—

"But of all the inorganic elements, none seem to exhibit so striking an adaptation to become a constituent of the organic body as Phosphorus. Here, then is an element, which can imperceptibly and quickly pass from a condition of great chemical activity to one of great chemical invitue of this character Phosphorus may follow the blood in its changes, may oxidise in one great set of capillaries, and be indifferent to oxygen in the other; may occur in the brain in the vitreous form, changing as quickly as the intellect or imagination demands, and literally flaming that thoughts may breathe and words may burn, and may be present in the bones in its amorphous form, content, like an impas-sive caryatid, to sustain upon its unwearied houlders the mere dead weight of stones of flesh-and what is here said of the brain, a contrasted with the bones, will apply with equal or similar force to many other organs of the body. All throughout the living system, we may believe that Phosphorus is found pt the centres of vital action in the active ondition, and at its outlying points in the assive condition." the conclusion that Phosphorus in a free, un-oxidated state is an essential element of activity in the grain and nervous system of animals; it is equally difficult to resist the conviction of the great importance of Phosphorous as an element of the Materia Medica.

One as an element of the Materia Medica.

The question naturally presents itself, "Why is so valuable an element so little regarded and so seldom prescribed?" The enly answer which can be given is:—that a certain difficulty has been found in so preparing it that its action may be kept under perfect control. Hitherto it has been used in almond and olive oils, in Sulphuric Ether, in rectified Alcohol, in Chloroform, and in several other substances; but however valuable it has been found in all the hitherto known methods of its preparation, certain irregular results have been experienced, which have led physicians to neglect it for general purposes, and to employ it only in extreme cases. But a chemical process has now been discovered, by which its invaluable action on the human system may be realised without any of those drawbacks which previous modes of administration have invariably produced.
