Bananas ...
An extensive and efficient food distribution system allows North American consumers to enjoy food items from all over the world. And although we are more aware of conditions which affect the price of locally produced foods, we are less aware of factors affecting the price of food grown in other parts of the world.
Weather in growing areas is a major factor in world food supplies. Until recently, we've taken for granted the good supply and traditionally low price of bananas. However, last year a hurricane in Honduras damaged young banana trees. Since Honduras produces the greatest quantity of bananas for export, the price of bananas available to Canadian consumers is currently higher.
Bananas bruise easily, so for the sake of shoppers who wish to continue buying and are anxious to have near-perfect fruit for their money please handle bananas carefully at the supermarket.
Mrs. Green is available to talk "shopping" to groups. Call (416) 259-6633 or write The Oshawa Group Limited, 300 The East Mall, (Isl.) Toronto, Ontario, M9B 6B8.
