What Is Red Spring Salmon?
If you've seen our recent ad, IGA offered a salmon special advertised as Clipper Red Spring salmon, a species that is not well known by homemakers because it is usually sold on the fresh or frozen market as whole salmon or chunks. Also, it is sought by sport fishermen.
A considerable catch plus a lower demand for fresh and frozen salmon last year made it possible for packers to can this species and offer it for sale at a low price.
Only the smaller sized Red Spring is canned, the flakes are large and the color of Red Spring is between the Clifton and Pink species. Clipper is the brand name used by British Columbia Packers.
Red Spring salmon has the same nutritional value as other species and is a good buy.
