

They've been good years

Mr. and Mrs. George Latondress of William Street in Victoria Harbour celebrated their 59th anniversary last Friday. They were married in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Victoria Harbour in 1916 and have lived there ever since. Mr. Latondress has worked at the sawmill in Victoria Harbour, as well as on the railroad and unloading grain and at the time of his retirement at the age of 73 was working for the Village of Victoria Harbour. The celebration was a quiet one with the highlight of the day a high mass planned for that evening.

MSS students send $163 to World Vision

What do a group of high school students do when they have a lot of concern about their privileged position as Canadians? If the group is the Christian Fellowship of Midland Secondary School, they act. At their final meeting of the year this active group of a dozen students sent a cheque for $163.00 to World Vision, a relief organization, for use in Chad.

"We started the year with nothing and we're ending with nothing," teacher sponsor Doug Brooks said. "What we have done this year will be a challenge for the group next year."

The money was raised through a car wash and by operating the refreshment table for "Anastasia" and the regional drama festival held at the school in the spring, as well as from the showing of a movie.

Other group activities include discussions, Bible studies and times of prayer. The money for Chad is the second such action of the group this year. Members of the group raised over $300.00 during the Help the Hungry program in March — a significant portion of the $2800.00 raised in the Midland area.

St. Paul's crafts display

St. Paul's United Church in Midland is again sponsoring an Arts and Crafts festival this week. Displays of various types of arts and craft products are being given and several demonstrations of how to make some of the items are planned. Only a small portion of the crafts present are shown in the picture above which gives a partial glimpse of the diversity of goods available.

Briefs sought on quality of French health services

The French Language Health Services Task Force invites the public to submit briefs on health services in French in Ontario. The eight-member Task Force will also hold public hearings in various centres starting in September.

Welland, states that the most important aspect of their study is the submission of briefs by groups of individuals throughout Ontario.

"Our Task Force is people-oriented," explains the chairman. "We want the people, individually or in groups, to tell us what they feel is needed and to make recommendations."

Briefs should be addressed to the French Language Health Services Task Force, 7th Floor, Hepburn Block, Queen's Park, Toronto, before September 8.

People or groups wishing to appear before the Task Force should also contact the Toronto office. Arrangements will be made to hold public hearings in communities where there are requests for personal submissions before the Task Force.

The co-ordinator for the Task Force is Jean Guy Bigras, formerly of the Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs.
