Mopeds stolen

Two mopeds were reported stolen from 3 Chatham Street on Thursday sometime between 12 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. The theft of the mopeds belonging to Chalet Sports and valued at $449 each, was reported to police by Steve Lalonde. One of the mopeds was white, the other red.

Hit and run No. one

Police are searching for a green Mustang as the vehicle which may possibly have smashed into the left front side of a car parked on Water Street at 1:37 a.m. Friday. Damage to the blue Pontiac, owned by Jim Park of 1 Water Street, is estimated at approximately $50.

Hit and run No. two

The owner of a 1968 or 69 blue Ford left behind his left front fender following a hit and run accident at 1:10 a.m. Friday on Champlain Road near the intersection with Robert Street West.

Attempted break and enter

An attempted break and enter at Dupuis Store on Robert Street West is still under investigation. While making the rounds at 1:30 a.m. Sunday police discovered the hasp and lock to the store door had been damaged.

Theft at the dock lunch

An undetermined amount of money was taken from two cash boxes at the Dock Lunch by the town docks. The break enter and theft was discovered at 2:30 a.m. on Monday. Entry was gained by forcing a back door.

Hit and run No. three

The third hit and run of the week occurred last Friday at 6:15 p.m. when a brown half ton truck clipped the rear of a car as the truck made a turn into the Hotel Brule parking lot.

Edna Gaeler of Clearwater Beach was driving her car north on Main Street when the truck scraped her left rear fender causing an estimated $35 in damages. After the truck driver turned into the Brule parking lot he or she just kept on driving.

Dousing the fire

A fireman sprays water over the smoking remains of a Owen Street house which was being torn down to make room for an apartment building. The apartment building, which is being built by the developers of the High Point Mall will be located directly across from St. Joseph's Public Elementary School. Gennaro Debellis, one of the men working to tear down the house said that the blaze started when the roof was accidentally pushed off and onto an area where a small fire had been set at the back. The small fire at the back was being used to burn bits of material torn off the house. The only real damage reported was to a tent in the back of a nearby yard. The tent belonging to Jules Vallee was valued at $169 by town police.

Pitching in the bull pen

Three-year-old David Cooper warms up on the sidelines at Penetanguishene's McGuire Park during a game between Caswell's Antiques and the Penetanguishene Expos. While young David was warming up in the bullpen his father Murray Cooper was pitching for Caswell's. When his father ran into trouble on the mound the coach hesitated to put David in. The Expos downed Caswell's 12-7. The coach of Caswell's Antiques could not be reached for a comment on the possibility of using young David as a reliever in future games.

Kelly blasts Davis gov't

Abuses in the legal aid system and the need to reduce the bureaucracy of the province's education system are two of the main issues in this summer's provincial election, claimed Liberal Party candidate Margaret Kelly during a visit to Penetanguishene. Kelly, a Barrie social worker, is carrying the Liberal banner in the Simcoe-Centre race against New Democratic Party candidate Paul Wessinger and incumbent Conservative MPP Art Evans. "The administration of justice in this area is an issue for many people," claimed Kelly. The problem, she said, is with the legal aid system which allows too much assistance to people charged with crimes. As an example Kelly claimed that "one man in this area cost $24,000 in legal aid" and he's still walking the streets. The long periods of time between when a person is charged and the actual trial is heard was cited by Margaret Kelly as another problem which needs correcting. Kelly was also critical of the high costs of education which she attributed to an oversized bureaucracy. Since Bill Davis became education minister in 1961 "nobody has slowed down enough to look at where we're going" in education she said.

In Beaumaur subdivision

Severances granted developers

The Committee of adjustment approved a developer's request to sever 20 lots for the Beaumaur subdivision in the south western part of town. The decision was reached at a meeting last Wednesday night despite the objections of a delegation of nearly 20 John Street residents.

The John Street residents were objecting to the developer's (Ves-Bar Developments Limited of Barrie) plans to build semi-detached units on nine of the 20 lots which were severed. Since nine of the lots are technically undersized for semi-detached units the John Street residents were pushing for single family houses on the undersized lots. However, a special exemption from town council allows the developer to build semi-detached houses on the undersized lots.

Notices will be sent out to those John Street residents who appeared at last Wednesday's meeting. They will be asked whether or not they approve of the committee of adjustment's decision to allow the severances. If any objections are forwarded to the town office within 21 days they will be sent to the Ontario Municipal Board which will decide if an appeal is warranted.

If an appeal is considered necessary the whole appeal process could take up to six months. If not the OMB would probably send notice of its decision to allow the severances back to the town within a month.

Even if the severances should eventually be disallowed by the OMB the developer can still build semi-detached units. If severances were rejected by the OMB it would mean that 20 people would be forced to buy each complete semi-detached unit, one half probably for living in, the other half for renting.

Severance approval would allow the developer to create 40 lots for 40 owners.
