Daughters get in the act too

Hunters and Anglers father and son night

by Boyce Berriault Active member outdoor Writers of Canada

It was truly an unusual evening at the Georgian Bay Hunters and Anglers club house on June 16th. The guests numbered 73 and ranged in age from four to 40 as the members held their annual Father and Son night. This year something new was added with members being allowed to bring daughters as well as sons. The evening was considerably louder than usual as fathers, sons and daughters enjoyed the outing.

Since the usual cooks were holidaying, the cooking chores were handled by some of the members wives which included Nae Newburn, Adrian Alphonse, Clare Cadeau, Pat Wiesflog Joanne Reed, Terry Bourgeois, Linda Lacroix, Mary Crawford and Karen Berriault. After the meal was served a collection was taken to show the members appreciation for the work done by the women. The women in turn donated all proceeds to the new District Hospital nearing completion in Midland.

With all the hot dogs, pop and ice cream the children could eat under their belts, a draw was held. Most members would like to see the Olympic draw carried on with the same results. Every child present was a winner. It was by far more boisterous than the usual draw as some of the children felt they weren't getting a fair shake of the ticket box. Smokey Woods, draw master, warned the young winners to keep the lures from their fishing fathers much to the amusement of the dads present.

John Mueller took over in the newly finished basement hall. Here John captivated his young audience with films much to their delight. As the children enjoyed the films a short bit of business was carried on. Harold McAllen reported on new rulings now in effect in Midland's Little Lake Park having to do with outboard motors. He felt with the Little Lake Bass Derby so close all contestants should be aware of the changes. He went on to state further that all boats must not exceed the ten horse power bylaw and must act in a conscientious manner while driving boats and fishing. McAllen asked that anyone using the park help in all ways to keep debris from the land and water. At the conclusion of the meeting the Hunters and Anglers 50-50 draw was held. A young lady in the audience, Margaret Cadeau, made Harold Leonard $460 richer by pulling his ticket from the drum.

Many stories flew about the clubhouse on this special night but one in particular showed that the dads are keeping their children on the straight and narrow in regards to fishing seasons. Kelly Norton caught a real big keeper bass for which dad had to explain it had to go back into the water since the season does not open until Sat., June 26th. When I asked her for a comment all she said, with a shrug of the shoulders was, 'it was out of season'.

Giving blood is a very unselfish thing to do, though there are still those who don't prescribe to that notion. Al Cairns, from Port McNicoll, is a regular donor, so when the clinic was held at RCA last Thursday, he took advantage of the opportunity.
