

Manpower questionnaires coming in

Manpower officials in Midland are awaiting results from youth in the area before progressing with an analysis of questionnaires on youth and unemployment in North Simcoe.

Response from employers who received the youth questionnaire was better than expected with 20 per cent of the 700 employers who were mailed the forms answering the CMC survey.

"The youth response is quite good now," said CMC manager Don McKee last week. "We'd previously only handed forms out to them when they came into the office, but we started mailing forms to a cross section of people in our files and we are receiving a lot of replies."

Manpower officials are also planning a seminar for both employers and potential young employees which would review common problems and results of the survey. No date for release of the survey statistics or for the seminar have been set.

Tiny gets compliment

At the regular monthly meeting of Tiny Township Council held Thursday in the Township offices, Guy Maurice clerk of the township reported that he had received many calls from the people in the area commenting on the excellent job the road crew have made on the roads, despite the dreadful weather. Only one person had complained, he stated.

Paul Mills representing the V.O.N. approached council for financial assistance. Tiny had a deficit of $56.00 for patient care. Mr. Mills explained to council that the deficit for each municipality had been made up by the Department of Health, however since the Minister of Health has cut back on these programs the V.O.N. is in financial difficulty. Reeve Darby referred him to the Department of Community and Social Services.
