Processed Meats

Processed meats offer endless possibilities for busy cooks. Not only for the lunch box, but for casseroles, hot or cold kabobs and hors-d'oeuvres. For a change, roast a bologna chub at 325°F for 15-20 minutes a pound (to 140°F internal temperature) in a barbecue sauce. Simply remove the wrapping and place bologna in a pan with a lid. Baste occasionally with the sauce.

"Binders" are added to processed meats to improve the emulsion stability, the cooking yield, the slicing characteristics and the flavour.

The law controls the amount of cereal, skim milk powder and spices that may be used in processed meats. So buy them with confidence, for they are nutritious, high-quality alternatives to your regular menu.
