BIRTHS	IN MEMORIALS
Moreau - Lawrence and Karen are proud to announce the birth of their son, Jason on May 30, 1977 weighing 7 lbs. 11 1/2 oz. A brother for Bonnie. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Moreau, and Mrs. Harold Benson.	In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Elsie Graham, who passed away two years ago. In tears we saw you sinking. We watched you fade away. Our hearts were almost broken. You fought so hard to stay. But when we saw you sleeping. So peaceful, free from pain. We would not wish you back again. To suffer that again. Always loved and never forgotten. Your family.

 And talking about extra money, Mrs. Bingham feels that the objectives of Wintario ought to be re-examined. She feels it all shouldn't be going to culture and recreation, not with amount of money that Wintario is amassing.

She feels that Wintario would be a much better scheme if some of the money were siphoned off into health, or other vital areas.

Mrs. Bingham thinks that the source of mercury in area lakes and rivers should be discovered, that attempts at finding the source should be made. She added that although mercury does present a hazard, a look should also be taken at sewage.

Mrs. Bingham feels that interest free loans should be given to municipalities to update their sewage treatment plants.

As for jobs at the Huronia Regional Centre, she doesn't feel that a shut down will be a sudden thing, but rather a gradual move. For those presently employed there

Mrs. Bingham says: "The fair thing to do would be to offer them employment in the smaller centres...let them move with the patients."

She also suggests that if that is not possible — if the employees are not willing to relocate — they should be given an opportunity to work in another section of the civil service or be offered alternative jobs in the riding.

"But if they want to continue in the civil service they should be given that option first," she says.

Unemployment and the need for industry is another issue in this campaign and Mrs. Bingham feels that the province should help the city in obtaining industrial land. She has already said that a 1.5 acre parcel would be sold to the city for $1 if the Liberals were elected to govern.

She says that the hospital's farm land should be made available to the city if the farm is to be phased out and should be sold at a reasonable price, not at fair market value, nor a price to be negotiated later.

Mrs. Bingham says it is impossible to predict how many jobs will be created in the riding but that her party would help create those jobs by aiding the small businessman.

 Government spending is an election issue every year and this is no exception. "Government spending was out of hand in the late 60's and early 70's," says Pretty. "The government spends lavishly when times are good and retrenches heavily when times are bad. They should be more stabilized, then when times are rough they would be able to inject more money into the economy."

In Pretty's town of Orillia there is talk of large scale layoffs at the Huronia Regional Center. "The government seems to think these people are just going to disappear. They think some will go find another job or retire. I don't think that's good enough. There's no doubt in my mind that there is going to be a lot of people out of work."

Pretty added the matter has not been helped by conflicting reports of how many residents will remain in the center. "To expect that Orillia can replace 1,000 jobs is just plain ludicrous. The government is leaving a ghastly hole in the economy of Orillia and in its social structure. You can't take jobs away like that and have nothing to replace them with."

The question of what will happen to some of the Huron Regional Center's land is still up in the air. This provincially owned land could be used for industrial development and the Liberals have said they will donate it for $1 while the Conservatives say the land should be sold at market price.

Pretty would also like to see the one acre handed over to Orillia for a nominal fee. He said in order to attract industry to the land behind the one acre the municipality must be able to give them the frontage to old Highway 11.

Provincial party leader Stephen Lewis received criticism for his recent statement that the minimum wage should be raised to $4 per hour. Defending his party's stand Pretty said that the program would never be implemented in one move. "It would be phased in and part of a package deal supportive of small business."

Pretty said he is aware there are a lot of bosses of small businesses who are unable to take home $4 an hour. "Within months Ontario will have the second lowest minimum wage in Canada (second only to Newfoundland). Ontario has one of the strongest and richest economies."

Even at $4 an hour the annual salary would only be $8,000 said Pretty which is very close to the poverty line.

 Smith notes that it is his belief farmland need not be frozen, but that the preservation of farmlands should be governed by municipal zoning bylaws and official plans.

"While urban expansion is an inevitable process," Smith observes, "each year Ontario's farmers have experienced increased acreage production. Today, production returns are better than ever before."

Smith adds that while some marketing boards are working efficiently

Ontario is not in need of a beef marketing board. There's too much beef being imported to make it work, he says. But Smith feels that a closer liaison with the federal ministry of agriculture should be sought to seek ways and means of encouraging further farm productivity.

As for senior citizen housing, Smith believes that Simcoe East is not suffering from any deficiency in this area, but says that a needs study will be conducted in Victoria Harbour to ascertain whether or not such a need exists there. He says that Victoria Harbour and Tay Township would work together on the possible project, and Port McNicoll could be consulted to see if they would be interested.

"I've talked to Minister of Housing John Rhodes about this, and if it's needed and wanted, it will go ahead."

Public nurses' dispute
 The PC candidate believes that a dispute with Ontario's public health nurses should be ended soon. He says that the Minister of Labour Bette Stephenson has been urged to use her office to resolve the problem. The public health nurses have been without a contract for a year and a half.

"I believe that some people are in need of limited nursing care in their own homes and perhaps we should increase our budget to allow for an increased staff that could provide such care," Smith says. He hopes for quick resolution of the problem.

Smith explains that he is not in favour of selling, for the nominal sum of one dollar, an acre of land to Orillia, which the city needs to complete its industrial park. (The land has since been offered to Orillia for $60,000, after Orillia mayor Frank Dolcourt gave the premier a 72-hour ultimatum to make a deal with the city.)

"I honestly don't think it would be fair to the taxpayers of Ontario to place them in a situation where they would actually be subsidizing a land purchase for the City of Orillia," Smith believes.

Smith says he looks forward to the results of June 9th with all the enthusiasm, and optimism with which he awaited the results of his three previous elections. He has worked hard these past 37 days—and he hopes to reap the benefits of a job well done.
