

Involved in head-on collision, man convicted of dangerous driving

Three months in jail was the sentence imposed on a 24-year-old Penetanguishene man convicted in provincial court last Thursday of dangerous driving.

Frank Laramie pleaded guilty to the charge, laid in connection with an accident on Highway 27, on December 23 of last year.

man, to testify on Moreau's behalf. Father McGinnis told the court he had known Moreau for about four years, and said Moreau had worked for him as an altar boy. He said during those four years, Moreau had always impressed him as being responsible and helpful. He said Moreau's act had been out of charged at 10:00 a.m. on April 30.

The court was told Wood had come up from Ajax to Victoria Harbour to pick up a boat the night before the incident took place. He got in late, and had a number of drinks, going to bed at about 3:00 a.m. He got up about four hours later, and without having any breakfast, headed home with his boat on a trailer behind his car.

After driving for awhile, he decided he was still under the influence of alcohol, and pulled into a campground where he thought he would find a friend of his. When he found he was in the wrong place, and his friend was not there, he went to turn around and his boat trailer struck another car. At that point, police were called. They noticed an odour of alcohol, and determined that he was unsteady on his feet. Back at the station, a breathalyzer test showed an alcohol level of .130 in his blood, and the charge was laid.

influence of alcohol led to a $180 fine in provincial court Thursday for a 47-year-old Victoria Harbour man.

Robert Bryan Binns pleaded guilty to the charge, which was laid on June 11.

The court was told he had been spotted driving very slowly along Highway 12 near Victoria Harbour, weaving slightly within his own lane. When he was stopped, police noticed an odour of alcohol, and that he was unsteady on his feet. A breathalyzer test yielded a reading of .160. His lawyer told the court Binns had been at a dance, and after the dance had gone to a party. The lawyer pointed out that although Binns' driving had been below standard, it had not been particularly dangerous. Judge Geiger ordered him to pay the fine of $180, or spend 18 days in jail.

In provincial court

The court was told Laramie had pulled onto the highway from Highway 12, and had begun driving north at about 4:46 in the afternoon. He pulled out the road onto the shoulder. He then pulled out once again going up the hill, and forced another car off the road. Still on the hill, he pulled out a third time, and this time he was involved in a head-on collision with a car coming in the other direction.

character, and could possibly have come about because he had been out of school for a year, and had had nothing to do.

The attorney told the court Moreau had made restitution to the church, in the amount of about $40.00 to cover his share of the damage.

The judge fined Moreau $200, and put him on probation for a period of 12 months.

The damage to the two cars was about $3,500, and the driver of the other car suffered injuries to the back and neck. The court was told Laramie himself suffered a broken nose, broken ribs, and required three stitches to his face.

Laramie's attorney told the court he had been involved in a "situational crisis" that day after work, and had been in an agitated condition when he got into his car. The attorney also admitted that Laramie had two previous convictions for impaired driving, one in April of 1974, and the other in April of 1975.

On top of the jail term, the judge, L. Geiger, suspended Laramie's driving privileges for 18 months, and warned him that when he started driving again, he should be more responsible behind the wheel.

Willful damage
A 17-year-old Waubashene man received a fine and probation in provincial court last Thursday, after he pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief by causing willful damage to public property.

Charles Moreau was charged after he and two friends broke a number of windows in the United Church in Waubashene at about 1:30 a.m. on June 11. The court was told the three had been drinking heavily at a licensed establishment in Waubashene, and after leaving had broken the windows. The total damage was $121.40.

Before sentencing, Moreau's attorney called Father McGinnis, a Waubashene clergy-
