A letter from the Queen

The Queen does answer letters from all walks of Canadians - and Sherry and Jana LeClair of Midland have the proof right in their hands. Some weeks ago Sherry's teacher at Parkview School talked to her students about Queen Elizabeth's Jubilee and six year old Sherry was so taken with the special event that she drew a large poster of the royal family and promptly mailed it, with a small letter of explanation, to Buckingham Palace. The reply came last week - a hand addressed and signed letter from Susan Hussey, one of the Queen's ladies-in waiting, who said she had been commanded by The Queen to "thank you for the picture you have drawn for Her Majesty." No mention however was made of Sherry's request that the Queen visit Midland this year, but that did little to dampen the excitement at the Le Clair home last week.

(Except Holidays)
Last week I had the pleasure of spending the better part of a day with a very interesting young lady from the Consumer and Corporate Affairs

Dept. Contact has quite a number of calls each month concerning consumer problems. Some of these calls we have not been able to answer but I am happy to report that now we have in our files more updated information concerning these enquiries.

The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs works to protect Canadians against deception or misrepresentation and against hidden hazards in the goods they buy. It also insures that products meet set standards, to insure that there is adequate labelling of consumer products and to assist in answering legitimate complaints.

All of us as consumers have the right to truthful and honest information. Since Contact is an Information Centre we now are adding another service to our lists by acting as a liaison with this Federal Government Agency and helping to make the market place a fair place. So if you require any assistance with any consumer complaints please call Contact at 526-9333 and we will direct you through the proper channels so that your problems can be solved.

Happiness is helping others to help themselves.

Correction

On Friday, June 24 the Friday Times erroneously reported the Senior Citizen Center's repaired its leaky roof with a government grant of $3,200.

The total repair bill was $3,200 and a government grant of approximately $300 was for painting. The seniors' centre raised the funds for the repairs themselves. We apologize for this error.

CHAY blacks out

Here's hoping lightning only strikes twice, for Huronia's new FM station at least.

When the region experienced the heavy storms on Monday afternoon the first bolt of lightning disrupted the hydro supply, by damaging an insulator on a pole on the south east corner of CHAY's property that in turn tripped all the fuses on the adjacent pole.

The lack of power caused the station to be off air for about 90 minutes. Five minutes later the second bolt struck the STL tower located at the station. This bolt completely disintegrated a small antenna on the tower, used for monitoring local citizen band communications.

The bolt also caused a recently planted, small evergreen to be blown 40 feet from its spot in the landscaping, but still in its fibre pot.

Other damage caused by this bolt included disruption to the telephone system, and to the cartridge machines, making it impossible for the station to play commercials, news clips, special features, even its own musical identifications for over 5 hours.

CHAY announcer Tony Pearce, who, at the height of the storm was terrified by a tremendous blue flash in the control room, hopes that this experience with Huronia's weather will not be repeated.
