We want a winner

Will it - won't it? Tony Seljak, Lisa Urbanc, Paul Kirkopouos and Nick and John Derlis, all from Toronto, came up with winning choices a number of times at the Balm Beach's Summerama crown and anchor games.

Casino night nets $2,500 for Assoc. for retarded

Glittering lights, dancing, blackjack, crown and anchor, food and drink... It sounds like Monte Carlo or Las Vegas, but actually it was Penetanguishene Harbour and the "David Richard".

The occasion was a Casino Cruise sponsored by the Huronia Association for the Retarded. Held Saturday night, the cruise raised over $2,500.00 for the Association's work with the retarded of the Midland-Penetang area.

Joyce Hamelin, spokesperson for the Association, described the evening as "tremendously successful", noting that the cruise was not merely a financial success, but also a tremendous evening out for those who took the cruise.

Lasting from 9 p.m. until midnight, the cruise offered a variety of activities for those interested in trying their luck at the tables or those who simply wished to spend an evening in an exciting and unique environment.

One could gamble at the blackjack tables or lay down bets at the crown and anchor wheels. For those interested in activities of a more certain nature, various varieties of foods and beverages were available. Dance music was provided by Gail Robillard and his band. Mrs. Hamelin said that the Association plans to sponsor a similar cruise next year. She anticipates an even larger turnout, as the reaction of those who embarked on Saturday's cruise was so overwhelmingly positive that most 'passengers' will likely sign on again, accompanied this time by August 13,14 friends looking for an evening out in a unique setting, and who wish to support the continuing work for the retarded done by the Association.

Rug hooking display and demonstrations at Museum

Have you ever seen that we don't mean hooked in the sense of being stolen, but rather being crafted.

Huron Museum in Midland's Little Lake Park has arranged for an interesting display Saturday and Sunday afternoons, August 13 and 14 when all those people who have been wondering how beautiful patterns are brought to colourful reality in rugs, will be able to see the work being done before their eyes. Mrs. John Stott, along with several other ladies will be playing their handiwork in the Museum's Thor Hansen room during the two afternoons. These ladies, who are members of the Simcoe County Arts and Crafts Association, are experts at rug hooking, and later in the summer will be participating in that organization's annual quilt and rug fair.

The 1914 Model "T" Ford which Clint Truax has loaned to the Museum for the balance of the season is drawing much comment from the many people who have seen it since it went on display. Probably the most excited people who have viewed the car was a group from Taiwan who visited the Museum Sunday afternoon. They chattered away for a good quarter hour as they walked around and around the vehicle.

A family from New York City who are holidaying at their cottage near Cedar Point spent a considerable time looking over the car on Sunday with the father explaining various aspects of the antique to his youngsters. An English family who also visited Sunday afternoon left with the comment that they would have to come back because they hadn't been able to see everything during the nearly two hours they spent browsing around the Museum.

Huron Museum and Gallery of Historic Huronia is open daily from 9.30 to 5.30 and Sunday from 11 to 5.30.
