HDH Auxillary tables report

Annual reports usually make very dull reading - crammed with statistics, financial statements and uninteresting prose. This description, however, could in no way apply to the 21-page Annual Report of the H.D.H. Auxillary, presented to each member at the April 27 meeting. Well-written reports prepared by executive members, conveners, and committee chairmen tell the story of the incredible amount of work done by this organization for its hospital during the past 15 months.

For the benefit and interest of the reading public who so generously and consistently support all auxiliary projects, the following are just a few highlights of the 1977-78 report.

In her foreword, President Mary Luke expressed her appreciation for the tremendous cooperation I have received from the excellent executive, the whole auxiliary and the Administration of our beautiful new hospital.

"Accomplishments have been many and varied," she continued, "and it was a pleasure to work with the competent project conveners who made their individual events so professional and profitable. The financial success of these ventures enabled the Auxiliary to supply much needed equipment for the hospital."

Restricted budgets and inflationary conditions require more time given to In-service hospital work by volunteers. The information desk is now being staffed by Auxilians on Saturday and Sunday afternoons; visiting is taking place in the Chronic Ward; magazines are being placed in 16 lounge areas including emergency, X-Ray, physiotherapy, laboratory, admissions and in the Wards, and are changed every two weeks by Mrs. Esther Addison and Dr. Lois Twedle, assisted by Mrs. Julia West.

Convened by Barbara Thompson, tray favors are supplied to patients on St. Patrick's Day, Mother's Day, Thanksgiving, Easter, Father's Day and New Years. The Christmas music program, arranged by Mrs. Jessie Brown and Mrs. Esther Addison, included the kind cooperation of 10 musical groups who entertained patients from December 6 to December 22.

Monthly highlights: Secretary Mamie Gilber's report consisted of the highlights of each meeting. Noting that the membership has now grown to 115, with an average attendance of 48, she explained that the auxiliary's year is now from April to March, to coincide with that of the HDH Board.

In February, a $2500 donation brought the Auxiliary's initial contribution to the building fund to $20,000. The purchase of the $2,500 baby transporter was also approved.

In April 12 auxilians attended the Spring Conference in Orangeville. At the informal lawn luncheon at the home of past president Alberta Nicholls, in May, $4,000 was designated to cover the projected cost of an X-Ray tube replacement.

A complete tour of the hospital arranged by Administrator Ted Pritchard and his staff was enjoyed by more than 200 guests. A dedicated committee "created" hundreds of snowflake decorations from blue plastic bags collected for months by auxilians. The door prize was kindly donated by Paul Desroches of the Castle Gift Shop.

Committees: Candy Strippers: With the cooperation of Director of Nursing Mrs. William Vidler, chairman J. Baker and coordinators of the HDH Board of Mrs. P. Plaus, Miss M. Wilson and Mrs. L. Davis, Bernice Cooper was a named second vice-president. The new Tuck year, Carl, designed by Bev Thirty girls, working Hunter and created by from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. or Fred Hook was much from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. admired at the March totalled 2,700 hours meeting. Plans for a making beds, feeding dessert, bridge and patients, tiding rooms, fashion show on May 8, St. Paul's United Church at 1 the annual capping ceremony, October 20, caps and pins were presented to 15 girls who had worked over 100 hours, with honourable mention going to Linda Bruton who had accumulated more than 400 hours. Any girl in high school or leaving Grade 8 this year is eligible to work on a volunteer basis as a Candy Stripper. The committee includes Mrs. Georgina Dolezel, Mrs. Sheila Moore and convener Mrs. Betty Ann Bell.

Cart Report: For the first time, a stock of "sundries" always available from the cart, is now on sale in the Gift Shop. In her annual report, convener Alberta Nicholls voiced her appreciation to: John Jory for donating a carrying basket to bring stock from the work room to the Gift Shop; Bev Hunter, Fred Hook and Jerry Van Klink for their work on the new cart; Michael Kurrie, B. D'Aoust, A. MacInnis and G. McCutcheon for hours of stock replenishing; B. Malin for her telephone time keeping two members, tri-weekly serving the patients and staff and to Miriam Williams for "all her assistance!"

Dominion Store Tapes: From a small beginning, the D.S.T. plan has become a booming project. Many hours of work by convener Joan Lynn showed the following results: Equipment purchased for HDH: 1 hyercator, 1 cervical attachment and two Welch Allyn wall transformers (March, 1977); 1 electric kettle for gift shop (Oct. 1977); 1 inflato-matic tourniquet (Jan. 1978); retail cost - $1,384.37; cost in tapes - $519,912.17.

This concludes the annual report of the charter year of the HDH Auxillary. As Public Relations convener, my own report can be summed up in three words: "Well done, auxilians!"

Skier's story is tear jerker

by Terry Dupuis

A 1975 movie called The Other Side Of The Mountain told the true-life story of Jill Kinnmont. She was a young woman whose aspirations of becoming an Olympic skiing champion came to a shattering end when she was badly crippled in an accident. The tragedy left Jill almost completely paralyzed. Her fiancé couldn't cope with her handicap, so he abandoned her. But she eventually found love with a skier-daredevil named Dick Buek. Then another tragedy befell Jill; Buek was killed in a plane crash.

These events were movingly recounted in The Other Side Of The Mountain, and the result was one of the biggest hits of recent years. It was a first-rate tear-jerker, well-directed by Larry Pearce and beautifully performed by Marilyn Hasset as Jill and Beau Bridges as Dick Buek.

However, the Jill Kinnmont story does not end here, and the subsequent events of her life are recounted in a brand-new sequel called The Other Side Of The Mountain, Part Two. Marilyn Hasset is back again as Jill.

At the beginning of the new movie, Jill is receiving an award in Los Angeles as the woman of the year. She is successfully teaching at a Beverley Hills elementary school, and in the summertime she teaches at an Indian reservation in her home town of Bishop, California.

It seems that Jill has adjusted successfully to her handicap. But we learn that she is still plagued occasionally by nightmares. And her constant nurse and companion is now her mother. Her father had died a year earlier, and the event had nearly killed her with grief.

It seems that Jill is wary of forming another relationship with a man, because the deaths of the only two men she had loved in her life, Dick Buek and her father, make her feel jinxed. And she feels that she could not survive a third such tragedy.

She faces a dilemma when she finds herself falling in love again with a simple and down-to-earth man named John Boothe. But Jill's new love is a long-haul trucker, an occupation which carries a certain amount of risk. This is something which Jill does not feel she can cope with, so she feels she should turn down his proposal of marriage, even though the two of them are in love.

The Other Side Of The Mountain, Part Two is another first-rate tear-jerker. In addition to Marilyn Hasset's moving performance, there is an engaging performance by Timothy Bottoms as John Boothe. The director is once again Larry Pearce.

Viewers who loved the first installment of Mountain should find Part Two to be equally satisfying. And once again they would be wise to bring lots of kleenex with them to the theatre, if they are at all emotional or sentimental.

Library gets smoke detectors

There are 35,163 books on the shelves of Midland's Public Library, according to the annual report tabled recently.

Chief Librarian Helen Delaney reports that in the past year 26 displays by local artists and craftspeople were mounted at the library and five book nights were presented with writers Elizabeth Wilcott, Winifred Marsh, Doug Pollard and Muriel Newton-White, and Roderick Stewart.

In addition, Mrs. Delaney conducted videotaped interviews with a number of Canadian authors which were seen on Channel 12 locally. Author interviews are also aired regularly over CHAY-FM.

The highlight of the library year was the 10th Anniversary celebration which took place in September 24 and featured music, puppet shows, refreshments and a general spirit of celebration.

Improvements and additions to the library itself included tarring and graveling of the roof over the Fiction Room and security fencing. The entire second floor was repainted, smoke detectors were installed throughout the building and several additional pieces of office furniture were acquired.

The Reference Department, supervised by Catharine MacKenzie, has been enriched with the latest edition of the McGraw-Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology and a Map Room where three restored historical maps have been hung. During the year, Georgian College classes met in the Reference Department and booklists and bibliographies have been compiled of materials held in the library.
