Oldtimers to host three day tourney

The Elmvale based Georgian Bay Indians will be hosting their second annual Oldtimers Tournament this weekend at the Flos-Elmvale arena. Approximately 16 teams are expected to take part in the three day event.

Action will get underway Friday evening at 6 p.m. when players begin the battle for top spot in one of the four divisions. Action will continue Saturday morning at 8 a.m. and will keep up until 10 p.m. that night. Sunday will see more Oldtimers action starting at 8 a.m. and the final division games will get underway at 1 p.m.

The word Oldtimers to some conjures up a vision of gray-haired, balding men with no teeth. dragging themselves up and down the ice with the aid of a walking stick. This is not so.

Granted there are a few gray-haired or bald men on the ice, but the tempo of an Oldtimers game is by no means slow.

There is no body contact allowed in the Oldtimers hockey, but that rule in no way detracts from the excitement of each match. The bump and grind of the contact game is replaced by puck handling finesse and good hockey sense.

Scheduled to take part in the tournament at the arena this weekend will be local teams such as Elmvale, Penetang, Coldwater, Midland, Moonstone, Allendale, Collingwood and Orillia.

Others will travel from as far away as Scarborough, Toronto, Owen Sound, Kitchener and Bancroft to participate in three days of hockey play.

All in all, the tournament is shaping up to be one of the best ways to begin the hockey season in the village, so fans are encouraged to take in the games this weekend.

Last weekend This past weekend, the Georgian Bay Indians took part in the Orillia tournament. Their record stated they lost to Sarnia Friday night by a score of 5-0 while they defeated Moonstone 9-3 Saturday. On Sunday, the team lost to Owen Sound by a 4-3 score.

More councillors to serve you

Midland's council will be larger after the municipal election next month, but the councillors will be elected from half the number of wards that existed at the time of the last municipal election.

Because of a change in the ward system earlier this year, Midland has been divided, for election purposes, into two wards. King Street serves as the dividing line.

Midland voters are living in one of two wards for purposes of the upcoming, and future, elections, not in one of four wards, as they were two years ago when they last voted for local representatives on council, PUC and school boards.

But the number of people to be elected has changed too.

Until the recent change, one councillor was elected from each of four wards. Now three councillors will be elected from each of the two wards, the East Ward and the West Ward.

Voters will also choose, as usual, a deputy-reeve, reeve and mayor, elected from the general population.

The network of polling stations has been reorganized, also The four old wards had 24 polls between them. Now each ward has 15 polls. Each of the new polls has been measured so that past inconsistencies have been smoothed out.

Town clerk Mike Owen pointed out that when the town had four wards, one poll had over 550 electors. The ideal size for a poll, he said, is 325 voters.

Pilot CLC seminar will attract county workers

Steel, rubber and glass workers will join with industrial management on October 28 in Orillia to pioneer a major training program designed by the Canadian Labour Congress.

The three-day seminar will include management and union representatives from the public service sector who share a concern with the 15 per cent of Simcoe County emplovees whose work performance is affected by continuing personal problems.

Jim Brechin, Torontobased regional director for the CLC, in identifving the Orillia session as the first of its kind in Canada, said that video-tapes of the training process would be used to promote similar events across the country.

He pointed out that information gathered by Julien Major, CLC executive vice-president. the and organization's social and community programs department, pinpoints the most common employee problems as alcohol and drug abuse, marital and family, financial, legal and mental health.

Executive officers of the CLC selected Orillia as the location for their pilot program because of the co-operation offered them by COMBO. an incorporated labour-management action group working in the county for the past two years. Dr. Lyall Howlett, chairman of the local group, welcomed the CLC decision in his role as base surgeon for the Department of National Defense on Base Borden.

The base, with an average of 10 to 12,000 in residence and employed, is the largest supporter of COMBO. Attendance at the seminar is expected

Three Canadian singing duos and organ music by Dorothy Brombey-Smythe will provide entertainment daily along with square dancing on Saturdays and Sunday.

A new arts and crafts area has been created this vear where twenty Canadian artisans and craftsmen will be actively working in their chosen medium. Handcrafted quilts, sheepskin clothing, dolls, toys, sculptures in marble and metals, gold and silver jewellery, brass and copper wares, pottery, pysanky, watercolour and oil paintings, leathercraft and much more will be displayed and sold.

Twenty-seven marketing boards and growers' associations will be represented in Foodland Ontario '80 where producers and consumers will meet and discuss their food needs. Continuous daily stage demonstrations, food sampling, free draws and information pamphlets on nutritional values and recipes are available. A wine garden provides an opportunity to sit and enjoy music and magic each afternoon and evening. Every year the Royal features a major field crop. For the first time in the history of the Canadian potato industry, provincial marketing boards and growers' associations have joined together to present a national picture depicting the production, processing and marketing of this vital crop. This exhibit, created especially for the 1980 Royal, will later be used throughout the country to promote potatoes. Nov. 13, 15 and 16 will see the First Annual Prince Philip Cup Games at the Royal. In the spirit of a national east vs. west challenge, provincial Pony Club teams will compete in events designed for agility, speed and horsemanship.

Events Other events during the action-packed 10day show include a sheep shearing contest, and an international poster competition. General admission for adults is $3.50, students $2, children under 12, $1.25. Senior citizens $1.25 on Nov. 13 and 14. Royal Horse Show tickets are $6.50 to $9 and include General Admission.
