Visually handicapped treated to party

Visually handicapped people from this district were treated to a Christmas party Thursday evening at the I.O.O.F. Hall, where they were entertained and met Santa Claus. The party had originally been scheduled for Wednesday evening, but was cancelled due to weather.

The event was staged by members of the CNIB Huronia Advisory Board and entertainment and games were in charge of Mae Moriarty, committee chairman. Following singing of Christmas Carols, a number of games and contests were played, with prizes being handed out courtesy of a number of local merchants and businesses.

Santa Claus and a little elfin helper handed out gifts to all of the guests, and this was followed by a lunch of sandwiches and sweets.

A unanimous vote of appreciation was expressed to the ladies of Ideal Rebekah Lodge who provided use of the hall as well as supplied and served the lunch.

Members of the Advisory Board had sold tickets for a draw for some weeks prior to the party to earn funds for the purchase of gifts. Winner of the quilt was Bob Murray of Victoria Harbour; a frog coverlet was won by Ethel Bowman of Barrie ticket No. 660, and a set of mugs went to Theresa Dineen, Collingwood, ticket No. 1183.

And the snow keeps coming...

Last Thursday, according to Melville Curtis of Midland who keeps track of such information for the Atmospheric Environment Service of Ontario, a total of nine centimeters (5.4") of snow fell on Midland during the day.

By Friday morning with still a few flakes falling this year's totals look like this: 61 centimeters (36.6") of snow has fallen on the town since snow appeared for the first time this season on Nov. 24 when three centimeters (1.8") covered this part of Huronia.

Makeup can be fun

Cindy Kelly is part of the Huronia Players drama company and it must be fun, judging from the happy expression on her face. Here, she applies her makeup for a performance of "The Red Shoes" which played Friday and Saturday at Sacred Heart Public School in Midland.

EDHS addition on SCBE short list

Elmvale District High School is one of five schools under the jurisdiction of the Simcoe County Board of Education to be given priority in the board's 1981 Capital Expenditure Forecast.

The cost of an addition to EDHS, $718,000, is the second lowest of the five figures for five schools being sent to the Ministry of Education for approval.

Building an addition to EDHS has been an official priority for the board for the last few years.

The board has also tentatively budgeted $631,000 for Goodfellow Public School; slightly over $1.2 million for a new elementary school in Bradford; slightly over $1.2 million for a new elementary school in Alliston; and slightly over $1.2 million for a new elementary school in Barrie in Riverwood Farms.

Building in the last four cases would start in 1982 and would be subject to enrolment increases large enough to justify the building of the schools.
