

Happy 100th

The new chronic care wing of Penetanguishene General Hospital doesn't officially open until next month. However the new section was opened briefly Monday on the event of the 100th birthday of former Elmvale resident William Chisholm. With him is his niece, Monica Ryther.

The Red Shoes a delight

Of course everyone knows there's no such thing as magic shoes, but there seems to be a reluctance to prove the point. This was very evident in Midland on Saturday night when Huronia Players actors invited children to try on the mysterious red shoes following their final production. Several ordinarily brave little girls shyly backed away when the nasty gypsy Renata, played most effectively by May Williams, approached them holding the dancing shoes. "The Red Shoes" under the direction of Janet French was presented at Sacred Heart School at audience level with the younger children and the young-at-heart adults seated on the floor. The six actors held their captive audience spellbound during the performance. The limited but effective scenery and props created by Brian Cumming and Karen Carpenter allowed one's imagination to work fully and gave the performers plenty of room to dance their way through the two acts. Special acclaim should go to those in charge of wardrobes. The costumes were colourful and perfectly suited to each part. Cindy Kelly danced her way through the streets as Karen, the little orphan who was tricked into putting on the red shoes by Renata and her clown companion Jemmo. The latter part was a challenging role since Jemmo was a mute and had to communicate by expressions and sign language. Trudy Duckworth put a great deal of energy into her performance of this part and won the hearts of her audience with her constant recognition of the children seated in front during the production.

If you are flying to Milwaukee you may become rather concerned just prior to landing.

It seems a disgruntled homeowner has written on the roof of his house under the flightpath to Milwaukee airport, "Welcome to Cleveland, Ohio."

Stewardesses say some passengers get very upset thinking they are arriving in the wrong destination.

Miami Jai-Alai

Jai-Alai, one of Miami's most popular winter tourist events, has been added to the summer / fall calendar.

The world's fastest and most exciting game-pronounced hi-li-resembles handball, but the players use cestas (wicker slings).

It will be staged nightly, except Sundays, through Nov. 1, with the winter season slated from mid December through April, at the Miami Fronton.

French, Spanish and U.S. national champions will be competing, including winter favourites Asis, Joey, Soroa, Mendi, Pierre, and Zulaica, among others, in the current season of the pari-mutuel sport, originated in the 17th Century by Basque peasants, and has been played in Miami since 1925.

M & M's

A colourful show group billed as the M & M's have opened at the Hilton Hawaiian Village Hotel.
