

Tight fit

This seven tonne Carter Filter Press is now housed in Midland Water Pollution Treatment Plant's new sludge de-watering room. It was a tight fit getting the press into the building as this photo illustrates but it is there now, safe and sound and ready to be pressed into service once the plant is finally expanded later this year.

Pre-schoolers may attend MSS

Do you and your pre-schooler want to become involved with the co-operative nursery school at Midland Secondary School!

Come to a parents' organizational meeting Monday, April 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Family Studies Dept. E147 at the school.

The programme will integrate the Grill Family Course with the nursery school programme. It will accommodate a maximum of 18 children, three mornings a week.

The staff will consist of one Early Childhood Educator, one parent and two students.

Some parents will act as teacher assistants, as well all parents will attend business and parent education meetings and will be involved in fund raising activities for the nurserv school.

This will be a three part programme to meet the needs of the child, parents and adolescents.

For the child, it will provide an educational and social experience for the parents and pre-parents they will gain an understanding of child development, have the opportunity to view alternative child-rearing practices.

MSS chess team checks out tournament

Midland Secondary School's chess team sent two competitive units to Barrie Wednesday to compete in a country chess tournament, both teams doing rather well.

The A team came fifth out of 10 schools in their division while the B team tied for first in a field of five schools.

Members of the B team were Art Perrault, Bill Black, John Strapko and Rick Kruyf.

Cystic fibrosis research to benefit from show

The profits from a fashion show to be held in The Budd Watson Gallery next month will be donated to cystic fibrosis research.

The Kinette Club of Midland is presenting the fashion show, entitled Portraits of Summer, on May 7.

Fashions for men, women, children and maternity will be shown, with commentary by area television personality Moira Hunt. Admission will be $5.
