

Bargain hunters have hay-day at Midland's Sidewalk Sale

History on parade

Ste-Marie will be part of sale days

Again this year a display manned by costumed interpreters from the Historic Naval and Military Establishments and from Sainte-Marie among the Hurons will be part of the sidewalk sale days on Midland's King Street.

An interpreter in costume from each historical site will answer questions and hand out information, tell the public "a little bit about ourselves," says

Huron Historical Parks spokesman Robert Kennedy.

Artifacts from the popular tourist attractions, and photographs, will be on display, and brochures will be available.
