Marchildon Type A rec director

Ron Marchildon, arena and parks manager for Penetanguishene was awarded his Permanent Municipal Recreation Director Certificate Type A, Monday night at a regular monthly meeting of Penetanguishene town council.

Ron Marchildon

At one time, Marchildon who previously held his Type B certificate, could not have gotten his Type A certificate without attending a university course but that was recently changed to make the move up possible with a certain number of years as a recreation director.

Marchildon has been recreation director at Penetanguishene for eight years.

The Type A certificate also represents a monetary gain to the community, Penetanguishene now being eligible for $900 more in grants because of his improved standing.

In other arena news, a request from the Industrial Health and Safety Branch has been received by Penetanguishene town council that Penetanguishene Memorial Community Centre and Penetanguishene Curling Club be checked for structural safety and a report on the findings be returned to them.

It is mandatory such a rating to be taken every five years and the arena has not been checked since 1972 with the curling club not being checked since 1973.

Marchildon says such a check of these two buildings would not likely be taken until the new year when the budget could be revised to include the costs of a structural safety check.

According to Marchildon, a check on the two buildings could cost as much as a couple of $1,000 but he admits, "I really don't think its going to give us all that much trouble."
