

Airport has a new manager

It's official...Huron Airport has a new manager. That was confirmed yesterday by Guy Maurice, clerk of Tiny Township and member-secretary of the Huronia Airport Commission.

According to Maurice, he received a hand-delivered letter on Tuesday, Nov. 10 (although it was dated Oct. 3) which informs the commission that Ron Schout is the airport's new manager.

KIMBERLEY ANN JAGOS, R.N.
—eldest daughter of Patricia Jagos and the late Paul Jagos, graduated recently from Seneca College, Toronto with a Registered Nursing Degree.
Kim is presently employed on the Surgical Ward at North York General Hospital in Toronto.

The letter was signed by Uwe Leifland, who Maurice says, identified himself in the letter was president of Garrison Aviation.

In a letter sent to Maurice, dated Sept. 11, Garrison's Keith Rich indicated that both he (Rich) and Leifland were sole directors and officers of Garrison. That letter went on to say that Leifland had been appointed airport manager.

Several weeks ago in a telephone call to the airport this newspaper was told Geri Kamenz was the manager.

Meanwhile an official from Garrison and Leifland are to appear in court on Feb. 15 to answer charges laid this fall by the RCMP under the Immigration Act.

Those charges stem from a section of the Act which prevent, according to an RCMP spokesman, non-Canadians from working in Canada without a valid work permit.

A danger that we'll not remember

by Murray Moore
Elmvale's United Church minister is "really concerned that there is less and less emphasis on cenotaph services" on Remembrance Day.
In a recent interview, Rev. Sam Henderson said, "There's a danger that we are not taking the time to remember" past history. "Something may get lost."

After some mental calculation, Rev. Henderson pointed out that the Second World War, the last world-wide conflict, ended 36 years ago. "Anyone under the age of 45 will have no memories of the war. Anyone under 50 years of age will have no vital memories," he noted. The minister has to remind himself when addressing school children on the subject of the Second World War that as far as they are concerned, the Second World War is in the history books, and he is a part of history.

Rev. Henderson quoted a saying to the effect that those who inherit a thing of value do not keep it unless they have the qualities of the people who earned it.

The laying down of arms is not enough to gain peace, Rev. Henderson suggested.
