

Parks' visitors services ideal summer family fare

Visitor Services programs in Provincial Parks are organized for the enjoyment and education of park users. Campers, day-users and the general public are all welcome to participate.

An array of experiences are offered, ranging from demonstrations of canoeing, camping and other recreational skills, to nature hikes and evening programs.

The purchase of a daily vehicle permit at $2.50 per carload is the only fee applicable. The permit provides entry into the park as well as use of all park facilities for the day.

The following is a schedule of upcoming visitor services programs for Aug. 9-22 at local parks:

This member of the Toronto XL's rugby club obviously had his head in the game when his team met the Midland Old Bulls last weekend at Midland Secondary School. Despite this fellow's spirit, the Old Bulls won the game, and their counterpart regular Bulls squad won theirs right after. The younger team will be trying to duplicate that feat again tomorrow in Ajax where they'll meet that town's Wanderers.

opener while Harvey Mann toed the rubber for the Raiders.

The game was scoreless through five innings. Vasey managed one in the sixth and three more in the seventh, forcing Midland to the comeback trail -- which they almost completed with two seventh-inning runs.

The Twin Lakers were put in their place Monday, though, when they faced Midland's Bruce Guthrie. Mike Hill started for Vasey but the Raiders caught onto his act fairly quickly, running up four runs in the first inning before Widde took the controls again. But it was too late.

"You can't let those guys get the jump on you or you're in real trouble," said Widde. "They've got pretty much most of the top talent in the area and Monday night they seemed to be able to drop their hits in all the holes."

Whatever comes of the series, Widde knows he can look forward to the future with four Midget-age players on the roster and top-notch batters like Rob Moore, who hit a home run for the Twin Lakers' only marker Monday night.

Another youthful crew-of-the-future which has in these playoffs demonstrated that they're about ready for the cake right now, are the Vasey Royals.

Despite the fact that their opening round opposition, Phelpsston Hotel, were missing their first-rank pitcher Frank Minnings, the Royals put it to the Hotel 9-4 in the opener in Phelpsston.

Unfortunately for the Royals, Minnings made it back Monday. He couldn't bat (his leg's still sore from an injury received in a car accident two weekends ago), but, as any Royal could attest, he certainly could pitch.

Minnings struck out 15 Royals to lead his club to an 8-0 swamping and Phelpsston were back in the drivers' seat.

Whatever last night's outcome, though (results weren't available at press time), and in spite of Minnings' power, Phelpsston coach Keith French wasn't ready to back off after Monday's convincing cruise.

"You never know," said French. "They're a young ball club and they're not going to give up too easily."

Neither, no doubt, will the Wyebridge Warriors. But entering their series they had pretty good reason to believe they could pull off a sweet surprise.

Their foe, the Hillsdale Hustlers, hadn't won a game in their last five regular-season tries. They were, as coach Lionel Tréw was readily willing to admit, "in a bit of a rut."

And the rut continued through six and a half innings of their opening playoff series game as Paul Rowe held them to only one run while his team swatted in six.

Suddenly, in that final half of that final inning, the Hustlers came out of their rut. They scored five runs to tie the game -- led off by a homer from Peter Bressette -- and had the winning run on third base before they were stopped by Rowe.

There weren't any extra innings because there aren't any lights at Hillsdale (or Wyebridge), but that late charge woke the long-dozing Hustlers enough to spirit them to a 6-1 clobbering back in Hillsdale Monday.

Rowe took the loss in that one; Mark Ronald, who split the duties with Greg Wolfenden in the opener, gathered in the win.

The opening game of the semi-final series between the winners of last night's best-of-three series will get underway Monday, as will the continuing Midland-Vasey Twin Lakers set.

The latter game will start at 8:30 p.m. in Vasey.
