

Election fever

NANCY KEEFE: announced Monday she plans to seek a seat on Midland council, Nov. 8.

Nancy Keefe says 'yes'

Mrs. Keefe has her sights set on one of three aldermen's chairs in Ward One. She has previous council experience.

"We have to re-assess our current capital expenditure programs with a view to keeping our taxes below the anticipated inflation rate...even if it means a few pot holes in our roads," Mrs. Keefe stressed this week.

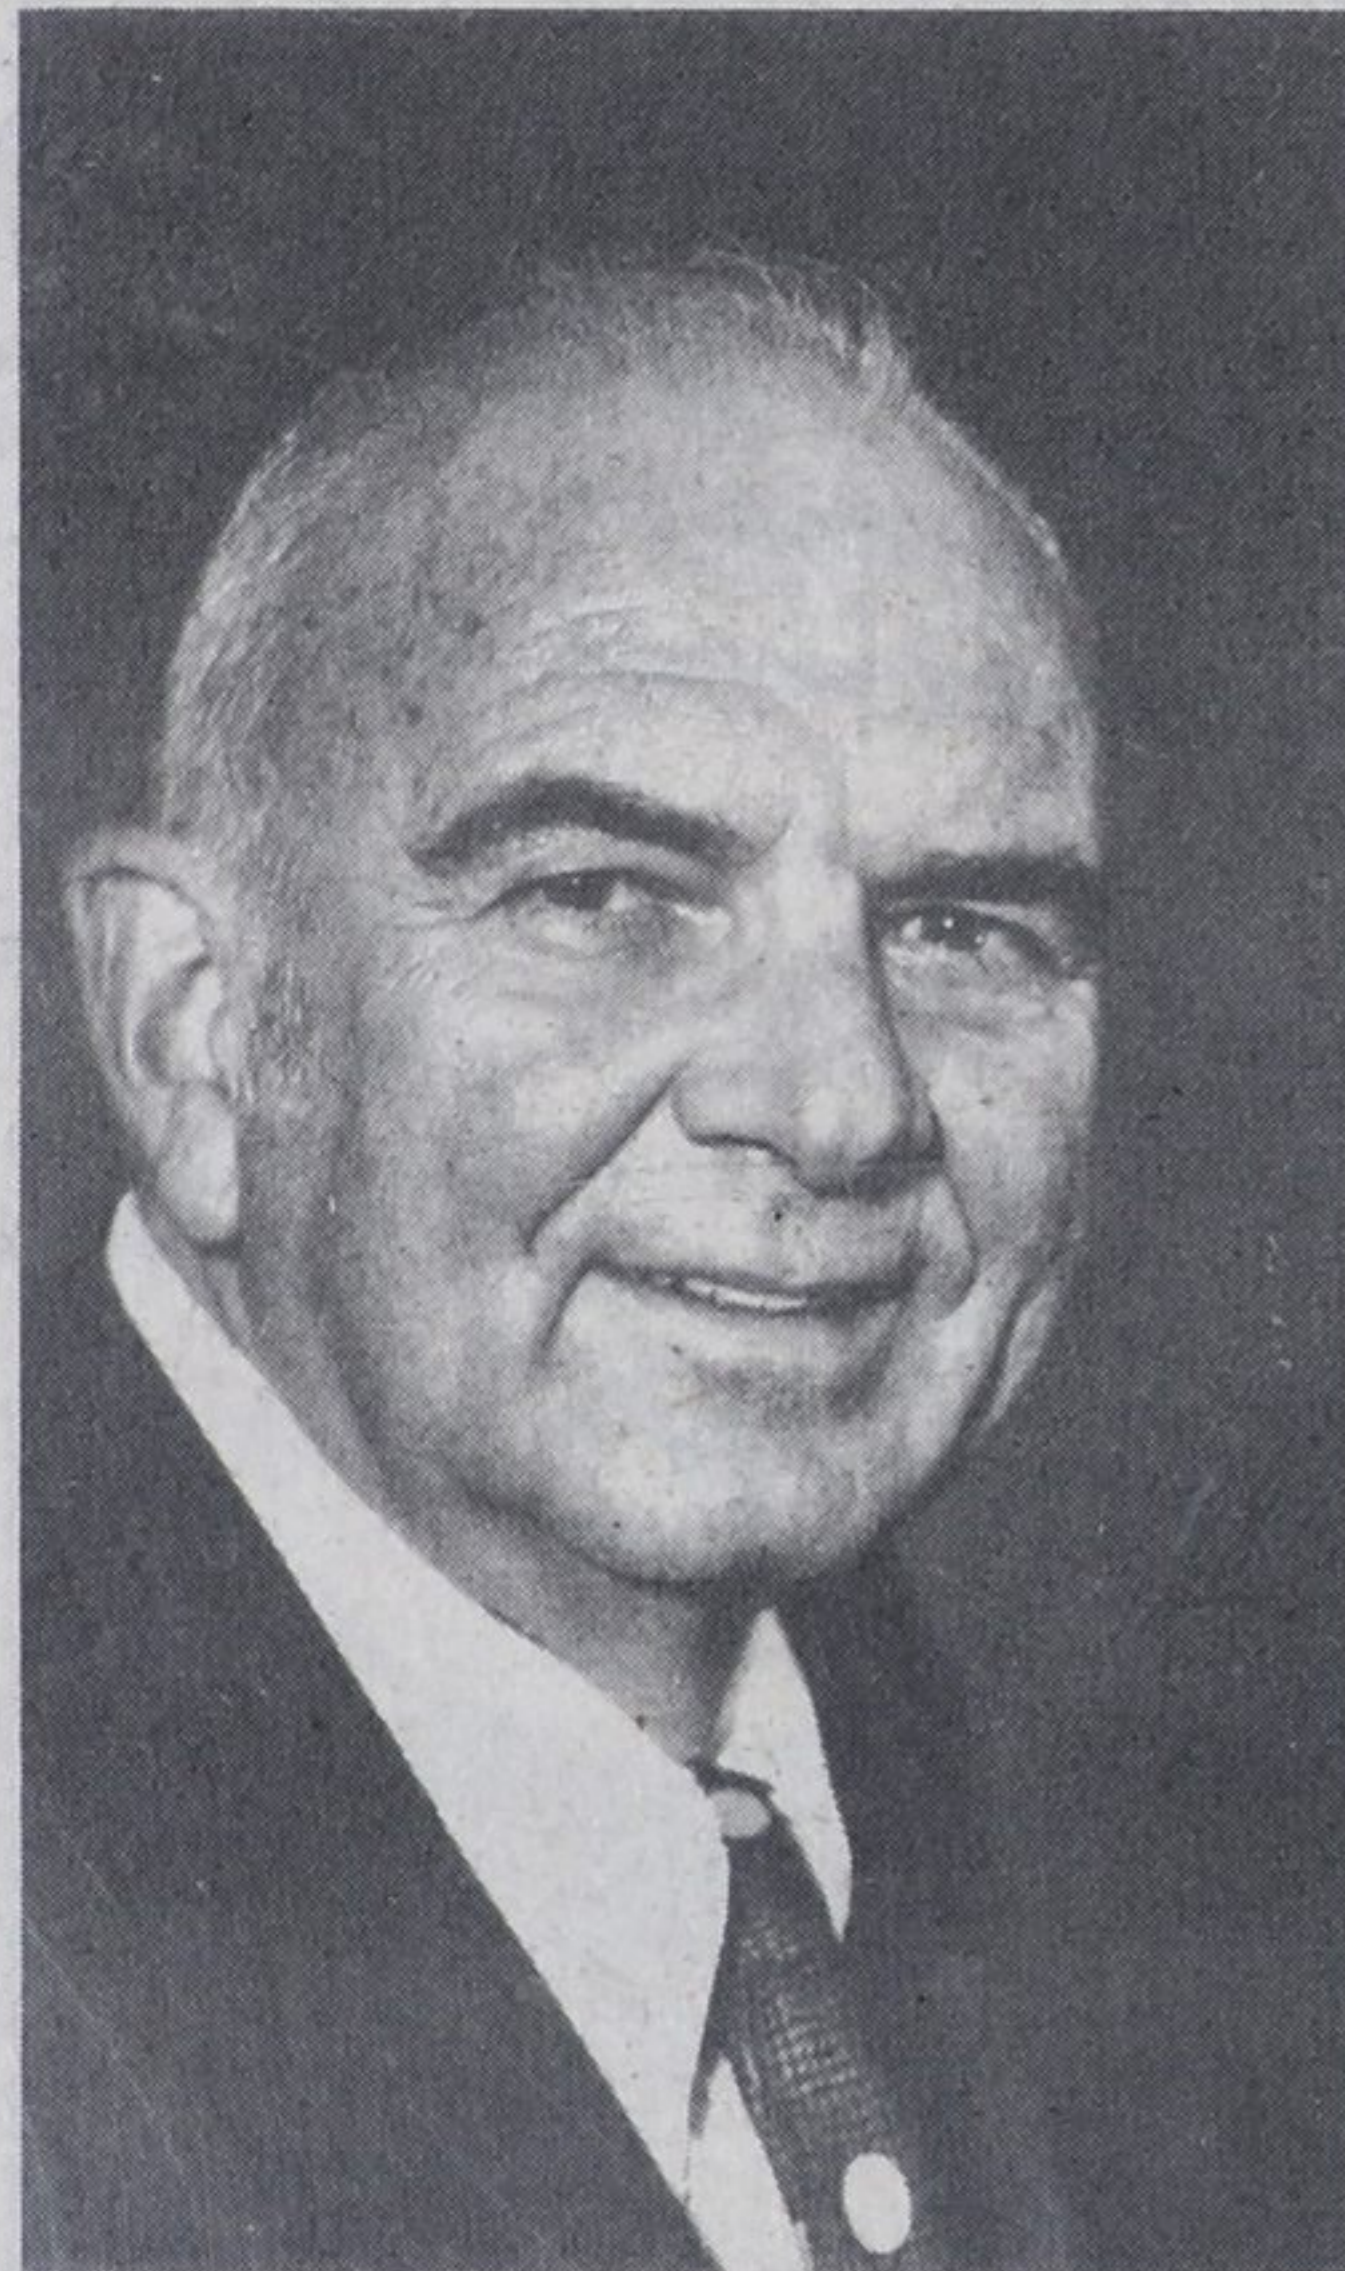

She also had something to say about Midland's plan to annex 2,600 acres of prime land from Tiny Township.

"I am not convinced at this time that annexation of adjacent lands is the best procedure until the cost benefit factors are known for our citizens to make an intelligent appraisal.

"As a taxpayer in Midland for 27 years I am keenly interested in our economic future."

Mrs. Keefe concluded by saying there was a need "to continue to promote industrial expansion, paying particular attention to the welfare of our present industries who are good corporate citizens."

Gibson seeks re-election

BILL GIBSON: Tay Township deputy-reeve has announced his intentions to be a candidate for re-election in November.

Gibson has served as a councillor during the past two-year terms and was recently appointed deputy-reeve after former reeve Charles Rawson stepped down and deputy-reeve David Walker was appointed by his colleagues as reeve.

Gibson is active in many local organizations and activities, is a member of the Board of Huronia District Hospital and is Commander of the Midland Power Squadron.

Gibson says he plans to seek a second term as deputy-reeve of Tay Township.

A chance for farmers to tell their own story

Farmers have a story to tell, and along with other members of the food industry, they're going to tell it during Agri-food week, Oct. 4 to 11.

Members of Canada's highly productive agri-food system are going to remind the general public that they are part of one of this country's largest, most important industries.

In Ontario, for instance, there are only 82,000 farmers. But last year, they produced over $5 billion worth of agricultural products. That's nearly 27 percent of Canada's total. Food processing is a $10 billion industry in Ontario.

At last year's annual convention, members of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture decided that the general public should be more aware of what a significant part the food industry plays in our economy. OFA's Public Relations and County Activities Committee put the wheels in motion for Canada's first Agri-food Week.

He said Agri-food Week would be an ideal time for the media to take a look at issues in the food industry. "Farmers have the potential to turn the economy of this province around. I don't think people realize our true worth yet."
