A little about a lot of things

by RON JOHNSON

Here's a collection of facts and impressions on the sports scene both locally and professionally. Pick out what you like, or disagree with what you don't like.

Midland Athletics should improve dramatically over the next couple of weeks, as their injury problems clear up, and they work to improve their overall defensive effort. They should snag third place in the OHA Intermediate league, even if it doesn't mean anything - all teams make the playoffs and the top two teams pick their playoff opponents. Home ice advantage would be nice, but will the Arena have ice long enough to support a championship team?

Penetanguishene Kings are starting to show signs of fraying around the edges. After going 12 games without losing, the magic seems to have disappeared. If it's just a slump, the Kings are not going to get help from their schedule to pull out of it. Leave it to coach Ron Marchildon to find the formula for turning the club around just as he did at the start of the season.

Stayner Siskins look to have the inside track in the race for the Southern Division title in Georgian Bay Junior C action. That is, if they continue to defeat their rivals like Kings, Essa, and Midland.

Although they lost to Essa, Sunday, Centennials seem to be on an upswing. Cents' play more closely resembles what they were doing earlier in the season. However, are there some rumblings coming from within the mechanism? Can the team cope with internal problems, or will they falter as has happened in the past? Good luck Ross McConnell.

Basketball is in full swing around the area (It has been in swing for a while according to local female teams!) Anyway, Midland Commodore Hotel cagers are in a fight with Stayner Mystics for first place in Simcoe County Intermediate Men's Basketball. They could win the race, but they need some of their injured players back, and they need to depend on continued fine play from Chester Graham and Jeff Attwood. They should get that, but I'll bet a good big man would light up Doug Andrews' eyes.

In other basketball news, remember MSS' Alumnae basketball night is Jan. 29 at the Hugel Avenue high school. If you want to play in either of the alumnae games, contact Chester Graham at the school, or at home. The senior boys and girls teams of this year will play the returning stars of yesterday. As well, there will be a game featuring the nearly unbeatable teachers against the Grade 13's. Sounds like fun, I wonder if they need an unbiased official?

The NFL, in its infinite wisdom, has adapted the NHL playoff qualifications. If you have a team in the league with a nick name that ends in "s" you get to share the playoff money. It's a good thing that it only goes for this year. Let's go out on a limb and make dumb predictions for the "second season". Watch for Cincinnati Bengals to take the AFC, while Tampa Bay Buccaneers will win in the NFC despite the feats of ex-Argo Joe Theismann of Washington. The Super Bowl will go to...to be continued.

Montreal Canadiens have suffered through their worst week in a long time, after losing and tying the Buds, and dropping an embarrassing 5-0 decision to the Rooskies. My rouge-bleu-et-blaanc sweater hasn't seen the light of day for a while.

Toronto journalists are ready for the playoffs already. Leafs have beaten three teams in a row, but remember they have to catch Detroit and they're six points back and are going on the road where they haven't notched a win in 11 months.

Some important events coming up locally. First the Big Brothers Bowl for Millions which takes place in February. Watch for more news concerning sponsoring a less than average bowler, in the next week or so.

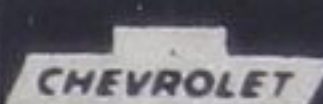

Another socially prominent event is the Timmy Snowarama snowmobile ride. Theme is the "Million Dollar Ride". Scheduled date is Jan. 29 which is a Saturday. Pledge forms are available from The Times office, and more information is handled by John Houston, whose phone number is 526-2240. It starts at the Sportsman Motor Inn in Victoria Harbour between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m.
