

Cheques on Saturday, Inn employees told

Employees of the Sportsman Motor Inn in Victoria Harbour were told this week they will be paid for their two weeks' work ending last Friday on March 31.

Last Thursday the employees were told that the Inn was closing, and to return the next day to get their pay cheques, says Inn housekeeper Linda Cavelaire. No cheques were given on Friday, she said.

Renovation was given as the reason for the Inn closing. On Friday the employees were told there wasn't money in the bank for their pay cheques, she said.

"I can't figure why they would close for renovation and not have any money for wages," Cavelaire said.

Cavelaire, an employee of the Inn for one year, and a Victoria Harbour resident, said yesterday that 32 people were employed at the Inn as of last week, residents of the village and of the surrounding area.

The employees were never paid for the two weeks last year when they worked for free at the Inn, she said.

Toronto lawyer

Reynolds Mastin was the owner of the Inn last March, and William Player's Kilderkin Investments was the Inn's manager. Coopers, Lybrand, a provincial receiver appointed by the province, was investigating Kilderkin.

The 17 employees of the Inn on March 22, 1983, were informed they would be laid off. They decided to work for free, keep the Inn open, in the hope that their jobs would be saved.

The current owner of the Inn is reported to be Braesyde Estates of London, Ont. The Inn is one of the village's largest employers.

The Inn employees received their separation papers yesterday. During a meeting the employees considered action they will take if they are not paid this Saturday. Picketing the Inn was one idea.

The Sportsman Motor Inn has more than 50 motel rooms, and dining, lounge, banquet and meeting rooms.

The Inn opened 26 years ago. Up to 45 people have worked at the Inn at the height of the tourist season in the past. In May and June of 1982 major renovations were done. Mastin and Player's Kilderkin became in-involved with the Inn in May of 1982.

No warning was given that the Inn was being closed, Cavelaire said yesterday.
