

Nutrition competition has been updated and expanded

Ministry of Health's annual province-wide nutrition-awareness competition for secondary schools has been updated and expanded for 1984/85. It has a new name, and offers many more prizes with an honorable mention category added.

"The competition has been renamed 'Food Fit' (formerly 'Eat Sensibly')," Health Minister Keith Norton announced today, "and, with additional regional prizes, the schools' chances of winning are improved. We expect more schools to enter. "The purpose of the competition, now in its sixth year, is to help encourage students directly--and the community indirectly--to become more aware of good nutritional practices, as well as to increase the availability of nutritious foods in schools," Norton added. Schools will also compete provincially for two grand prizes of $1,000 each for the best ongoing and newly initiated projects.

Caps off quite an evening

The red and white striped uniforms, silver charm mementos, and rolled diplomas prove that Nicole Parent (left) and April Cadeau have worked since June as Candystrippers at Huron District Hospital. The Midland girls were photographed just after their official Capping Ceremony at HDH last Tuesday.
