

Hurononia Players

Hartnell directs last play

by Cheri Ward
Well, they're back. Backstage that is. Once again it's time to hear from the unknown but well trained backstage crew of the Huronia Players. The Mumberley Inheritance by Warren Graves is the Players' final production of the 1986-86 season and it looks like it will end with a bang. The Mumberley Inheritance is directed by Stephen Hartnell. Hartnell has spent most of his stage life taking directions. This time he is giving them.

Producer of the play, Cheri Ward, is learning exactly what the producer does behind the scenes: produce good results.

Carole Ward moved up the ladder from assistant stage manager to stage manager. Ward says she is enjoying the job but now realizes the amount of work involved in this position.

The props crew is a special one this time. Most of them are Midland Secondary students who have graduated to assist the Players and have some fun. Scott Williamson has joined the players straight from the Sound of Music to help obtain the props. Williamson says although he is backstage he "hopes to someday appear on stage with the Players".

Duncan Lerous who is also from the Sound of Music feels that doing the props for this production gives him a recreational break from his hectic sports schedule.

Sound person Bradley Cook is another Sound of Music grad. Cook says he feels that the Players give him the chance to get adjusted to large drama groups before he goes off to university next year.

The veteran of the crew, Richard Holt, enjoys working with the younger crew members. Holt has been assisting the Players backstage since 1967.

Meanwhile, Ray Holt and Cliff Warren are brightening our lives from the lighting booth.

And Dolly Heaseman is helping the actors to say the right thing at the right time.

Nancy Capps will be tickling the ivories for this production. Cindy Pressman will be in to making up the faces of the actors and actresses.

The costumes are being handled by Stephen Hartnell.

Mary Haskill and Cheri Ward are together again telling stories about the cast and crew in the publicity department.

The Mumberley Inheritance by Warren Graves, and directed by Stephen Hartnell, runs May 9, 10, 16, 17, at M.S.S. in the auditorium. Curtain rises at 8 p.m. Hope to see you there, and until next season, have a safe and happy summer from the Huronia Players.
