

Martels enter in style

Teen Town band members The Martels, Bert Desroches, Gary French, Tom Ambeau, Larry French, and Milt Mudarick, made their entrance to the sold-out Teen Town Reunion No. 7, Saturday evening in Midland, in grand style. Tradition calls for the band members to be driven into the arena to the bandstand through the crowd of Teen Town veterans.

Fifties fashions

Ann Playne and Shirley Wismer were two of the 1,200 Teen Town faithfuls in Midland's Centennial Arena on Saturday evening. The 1,200 tickets were sold. An appeal was made during the dance for people with tickets to go to the door to surrender them, because of people from Toronto who arrived without tickets.

Police chaperones at street dance

A minimum of two off-duty police officers should be present at street dances, the Midland public safety committee has been advised.

The committee received a report on the street dance of Aug. 15. That event ended in struggles between police and young people. A number of charges were laid.

The police department made two other recommendations: a dance's sponsor should arrange for an adequate number of adult chaperones, and the area in which the dance is being held should be fenced, to assist police in controlling access.

The issue will be considered again by the committee at its next meeting. Two of the committee's members were absent last Thursday.

Chairman Alderman Buzz Brown said he thinks the recommendations are reasonable.

Brown would like the sponsors of street dances to be heard from, as well as the police department.

Off-duty police officers in Midland attend events for $20 an hour.
