

PGH final 75th birthday celebrations Saturday

Penetanguishene General Hospital's (PGH) 75th anniversary celebrations climaxed this weekend with an open house and tea, thanksgiving service and dinner party at the Highland Inn.

Saturday's festivities began at 2 p.m., when hospital staff served tea to approximately 50 people, including Cathy Furlong, who gave birth to twins Wendy and Sarah on the hospital's 75th birthday, April 19.

At the tea party, obstetrics nurse Vera Schuster presented anniversary and birthday spoons to the Furlong twins, Wendy and Sarah.

As well, tours of the hospital were available, and each unit had special displays documenting changes made in the past 75 years in medicine and in the PGH.

At 4 p.m., at St. Ann's Church, Auxiliary Archbishop of Toronto, the Most Reverend Leonard Wall celebrated the eucharist. In his homily, Wall praised the Grey Sisters, who took over the hospital in 1942 for their commitment to caring for the whole person - physical, emotional and spiritual. Wall also defined what he thought professionalism should mean: he said it's not only training and skill, but also a proclamation or announcement.

"Profession as expertise and profession as proclamation can never be divorced without damage to, if not destruction of, the whole truth," he said. "To be skillful experts with little faith professionally is merely being lukewarm technicians." The guest speaker at the dinner was Rick Haughian, the director of education of the Catholic Health Association. Haughlin spoke on the unique role the Catholic hospital has in the health care system in the community.

Also after dinner, hospital staff dressed up as clowns and honoured former staffers with balloons and hugs.

May I have this dance?

The air at Penetanguishene General Hospital's 75th anniversary dinner was festive. Staffers dressed as clowns danced with former staffers and gave out balloons.

Late birthday presents

Hospital Anniversary spoons were presented to Wendy and Sarah Furlong, who were born on Penetanguishene General Hospital's 75th birthday, April 19. The presentation was made by Obstetrics nurse Vera Schuster to the twins and their mother Cathy. A fight almost broke out during the presentation, but both girls ended up chewing happily on the bows.
