

Students help shelter

A class of Georgian College night school students has raised over $2,500 for the Rosewood Shelter in Midland.

But above that, says a spokesperson for the shelter, they have educated the public about the need for the shelter.

Ira Kellermann, executive director of the crisis shelter for abused women and children, said the money will help pay for a fire escape on the unused third floor of the shelter.

"The educational benefits always outweigh the financial part of it," she said. "It helps - but the main thing is public education."

The shelter has a third floor built already but it needs about $66,000 to finish it off. The money, $2,671 to be exact, will go towards "buying a few rungs on the fire escape."

Rosalie Pratt, the student spokesperson for the small-business marketing class, said the whole class felt helping the shelter was a good way to put their acquired skills to work.

The money was raised in seven weeks by sending letters to 250 local businesses, said Pratt. And she added that the money is still trickling in. "Overall I think it was very successful, considering the time limit we were working in - and with no funds," she said. Kellermann agreed, saying, "We really were winners in terms of being able to help the public."

Volunteers honoured at Manor

Last Thursday, Georgian Manor held a wine and cheese for their 50 volunteers presently enrolled in their volunteer program. April has been served by their volunteers a total of 311 recorded hours. Sharon Thompson has given the highest number of hours this month, 32.

Certificates of recognition and pins were presented by two of the Manor residents Sadie Simpson and Lillian Beck to 25 of our 50 volunteers.

These volunteers are presently committing their time to specific assigned programs on a monthly basis throughout the year.

The 25 members given pins and certificates were: Mavis Audern, Jeannie Bryce, Marie Dubeau, Fern Dorion, Denise Gilligan, Marion Hyde, Myrtle Hamelin, Chris King, Vivian Lalonde, Bev Long, June Marion, Doris McArthur, Joan Nesbitt, Muriel Novel, Norma Roberts, Lloyd Roberts, Lila Ryles, Joanna Stocker, Anne Strapko, Sharon Thompson, Ledi Vickers, Blanche Whittington and Anne Yurkiewicz.

Auxiliary pins were presented to our Georgian Manor auxiliary members who attended: Bev Long, president, Anne Yurkiewicz, Florence Willman, Ann Strepko, Blanche Whittington, Norma Roberts and Georgette Pauze.

Georgian Manor resident volunteers were also presented with Volunteer pins for aiding in transporting residents to and from activities: Pearl Richardson, Marie Tessier, Vina Arbour, Mark Parent, Liza Picotte, Leo Columbus, Vivian Morris, Philip Mailloux, Lillian Beck, Ed Desjardins.

NDP nomination Thursday

Muskoka-Georgian Bay New Democrats gather in Gravenhurst on Thursday to name a candidate for the next provincial election. NDP Oshawa MPP Mike Breugh is the scheduled guest speaker.

Simcoe East Liberals will choose a candidate to run in the next provincial election on June 20, when they gather in Coldwater. Four candidates are declared.

Sudbury MP Doug Frith will address Simcoe North Liberals on May 12. The Simcoe North Liberal Association is holding its annual meeting in Midland.

Safety check

Blair Paterson, age four, a Midland Nursery School student, has his tricycle checked by Midland OPP Constable Stephen Roden. The trike-a-thon, to raise money for the non-profit nursery school, took place in Mountainview Mall on Saturday.

Bill 30 effect 'minimal'

The effect of the provincial government giving through Bill 30 full funding to the province's Roman Catholic separate high schools has been "very minimal" in Simcoe County, the county's public school board of education director said recently.

Four separate school board high schools have been built in Simcoe County since Bill 30. The separate school board high school in Collingwood has fewer than 100 students. The government will receive a recommendation that it close. The public school board is being asked to share space with separate school board new high schools in Orillia, Bradford and Tottenham, Boswell said.

"I don't see very much change in the situation in the next 10 years."

The debate on the sharing of school space will be interesting, the director predicted.

Temporary help

Ainley and Associates has been retained to help Midland's clerk, treasurer and public works manager, until a new director of planning is hired.

Bryan MacKell, director of planning for more than seven years, ends his employment with the municipality this coming Friday. He has taken a job locally in the private sector.

Planning and development committee chairman Councillor Gail Barrie said, in connection with the council approval of calling on the planning consultants as needed, "We'd just like everyone to know that it's business as usual."

Construction in the town is at a greater level than it has been for years.
