

Sports Hall of Fame inductees

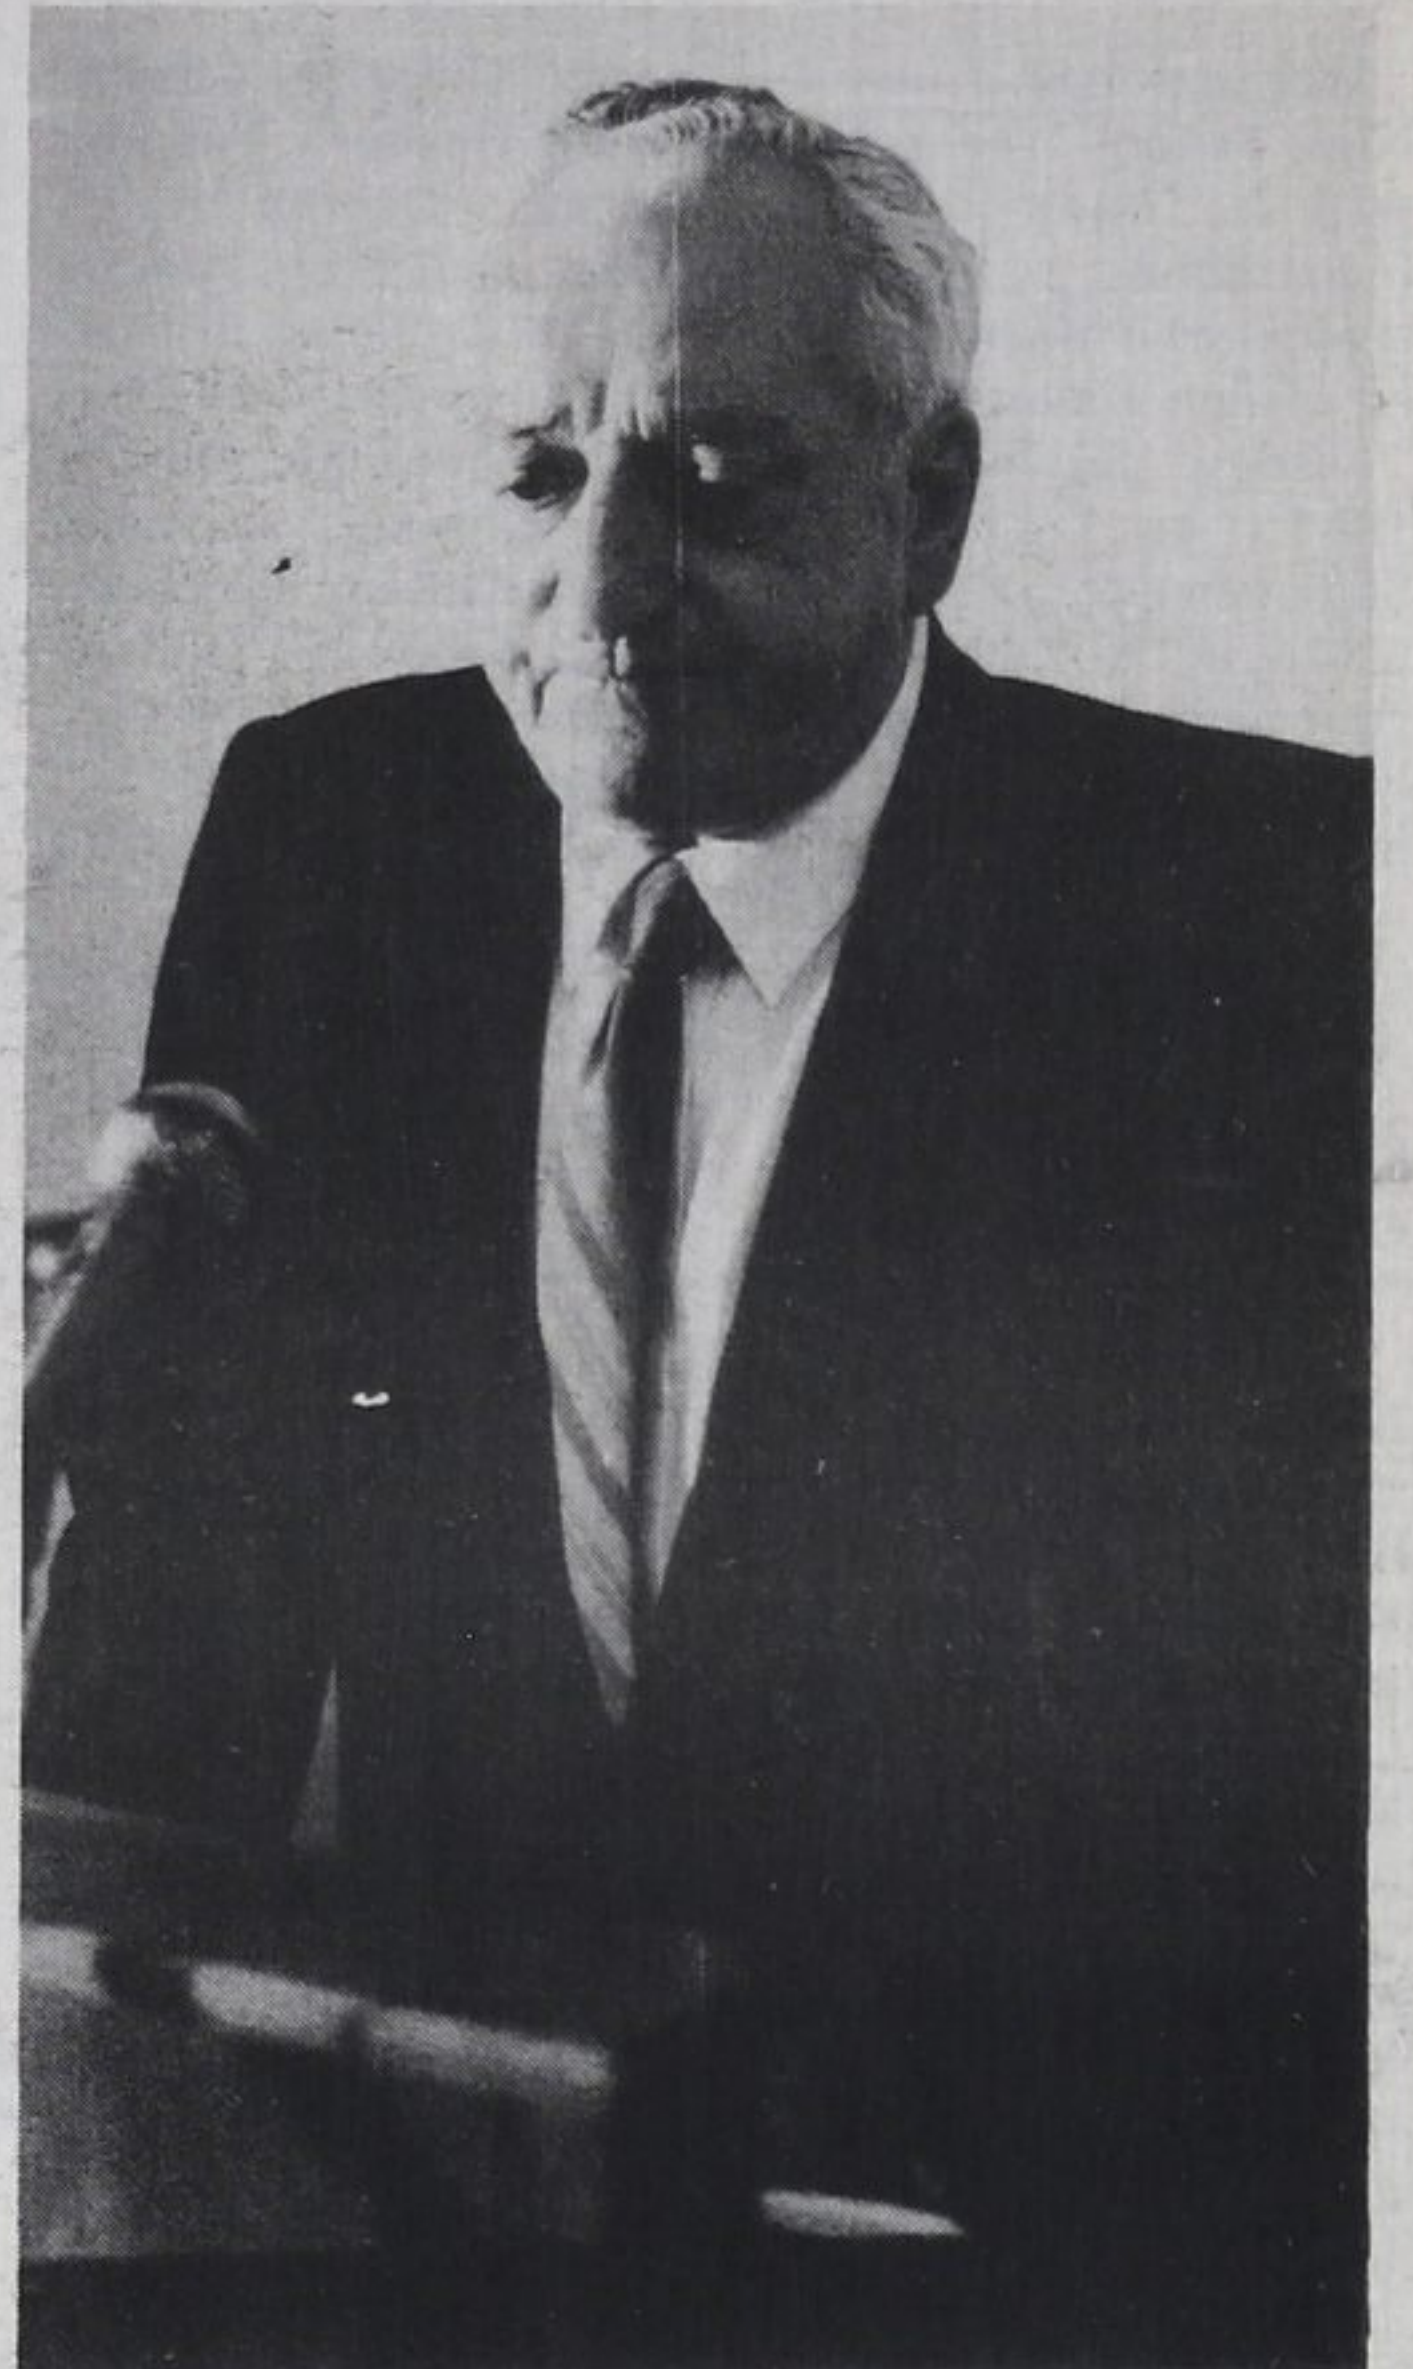

On son's behalf

Ken Tannahill addressed the Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony on behalf of his son Donald, who resides in California. Ken, in his discourse, told the crowd that when Don was playing junior hockey in Penetang, Helen Dubeau was the number one fan. Apparently she would get so vocal the referee one time came over and told her to take it easy before she had a heart attack.

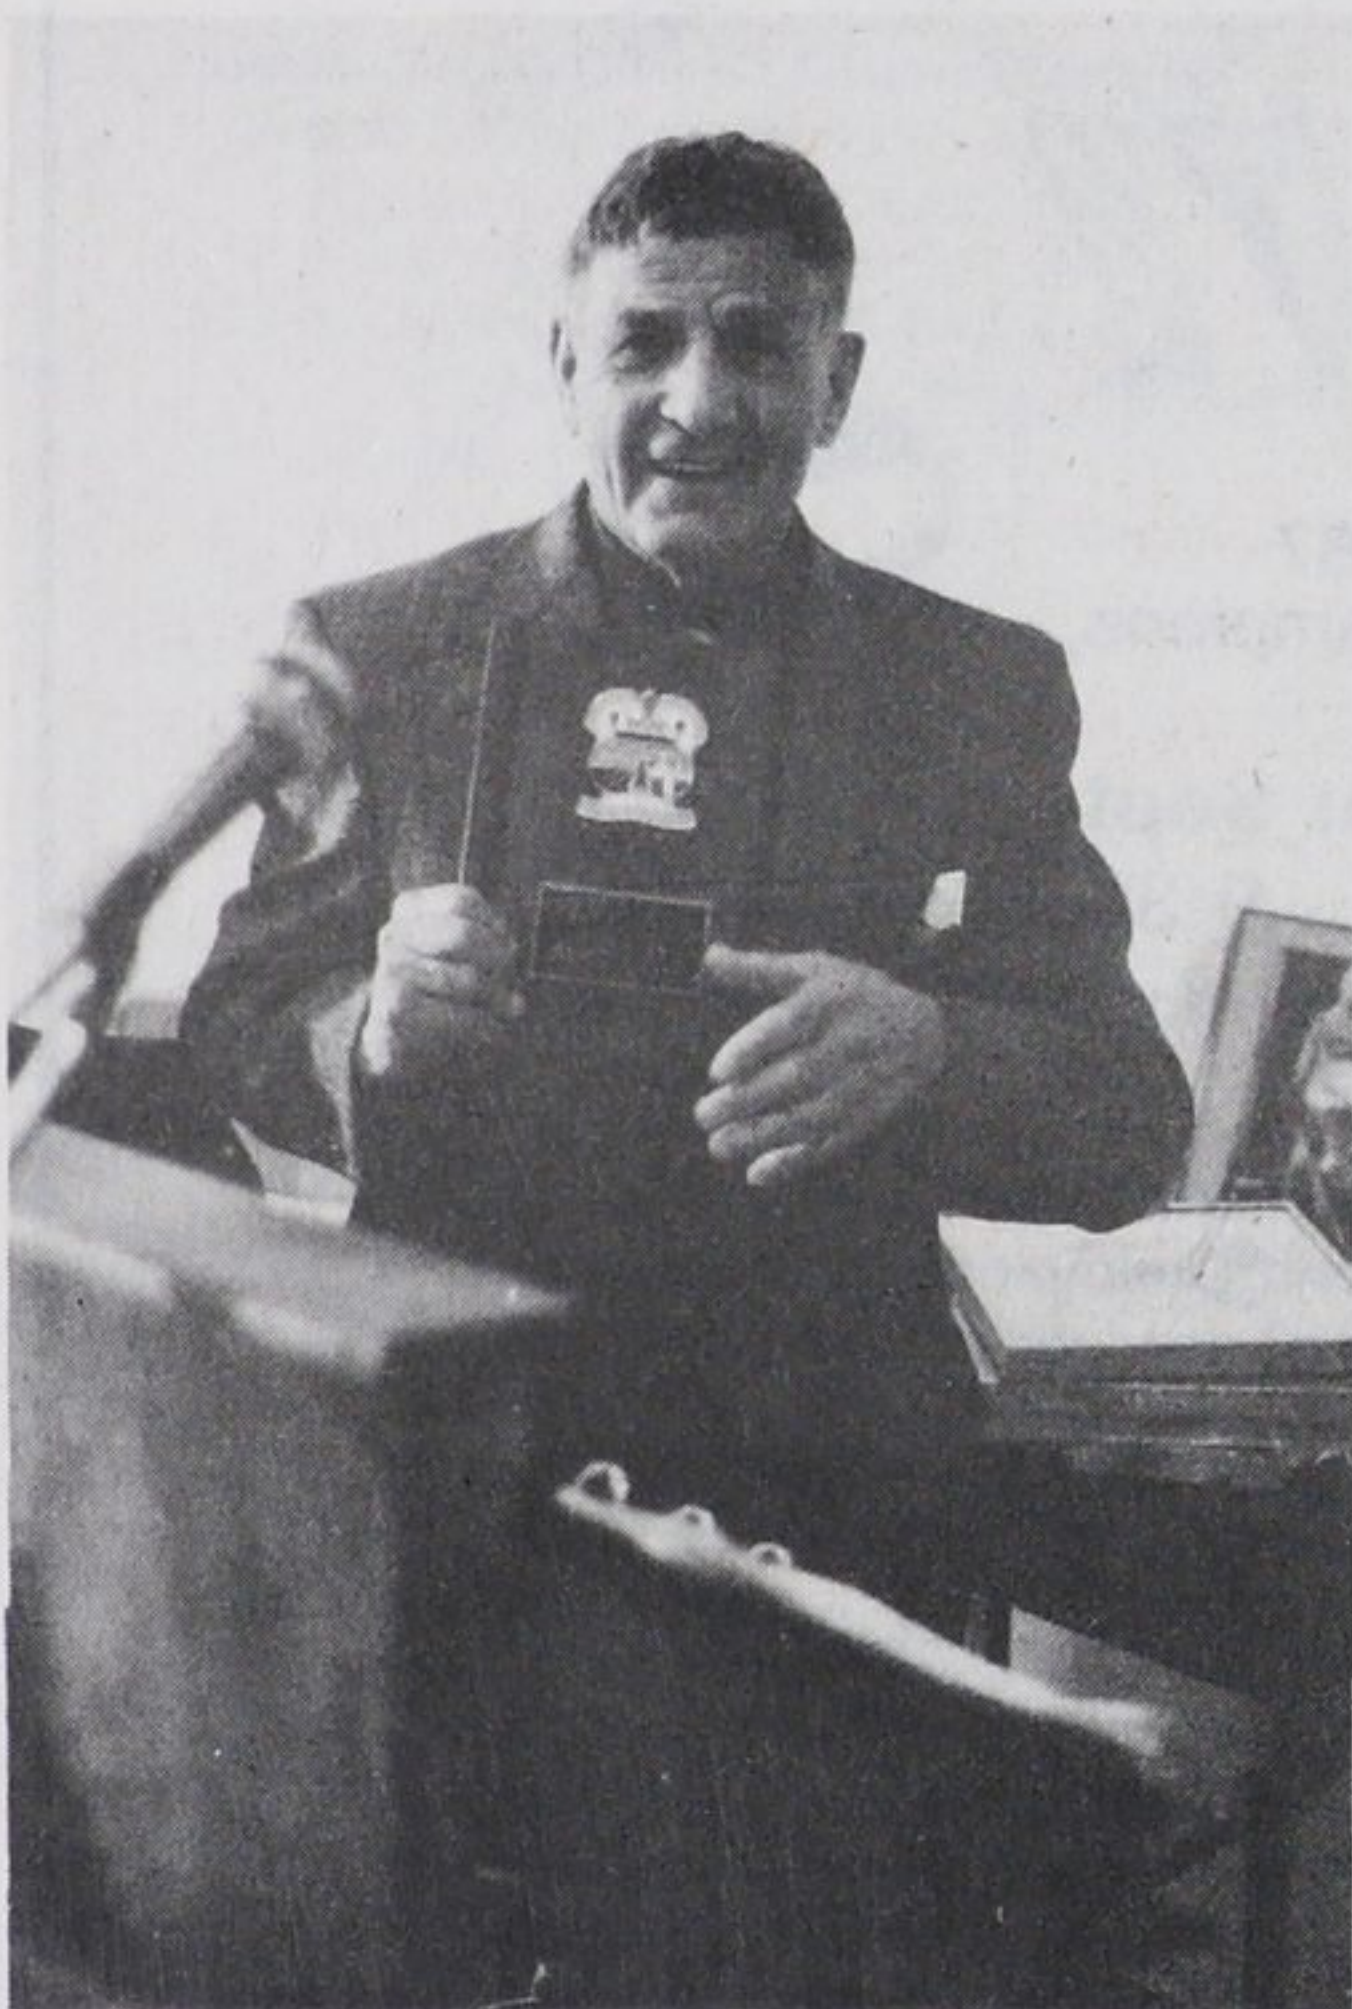

Midget goaltender

Jake Dupuis, left, receives his award from Committee Chairman Vince Moreau at Friday night's banquet. Jake was inducted as a hockey goaltender. Jake played midget in Penetang, junior in Hamilton and university hockey with Guelph.

"Babe"

Philip Edward "Babe" Marchildon, one of 13 inductees at the ceremonies in the Brian Orser Hall Friday evening, relates some of his experiences to the more than 200 attendees. Babe suggested that an umpires call cost him a perfect game in 1947.

Speech maker

Charlie Noquet delivers his spontaneous speech in eloquent fashion at the Hall of Fame dinner Friday night as the only inductee in the sports writer field. Charlie was a head table guest with his wife Doris.

Accepting plaque

Nellie Grigg accepts a plaque from Vince Moreau on behalf of her late husband Victor. Vic was inducted as a hockey player. He started with the Midland Juveniles in 1936 and moved to Penetang Jr. B and Guelph Biltmores before turning pro with the Toronto Maple Leafs.
