Two Tories

Simcoe East MPP Al McLean met up with federal privatization minister Barb McDougall after her speech at the Horseshoe Valley Inn last Thursday night. McDougall told the Simcoe North Progressive Conservative Association free trade will lead Canada into the 21st century.

Speech preaches free trade to Simcoe North Tories

The Minister Responsible for Regional Affairs, Barbara McDougall, figuratively slapped Premier David Peterson for his "wishy washy" stand on free trade.

Preaching free trade to the converted (namely the federal riding PC association) Thursday evening, McDougall said free trade will ensure a healthy prosperous future for Canada.

"We're creating a co-operative atmosphere (internationally). We're encouraging world investment in Canadian enterprises.

"It's a bilateral precedent for our multilateral relations."

The minister assured the riding members Canada's priority for a binding trade settlement dispute has been guaranteed.

"We're ensuring safety for investors, all the people who get up and go to work and they're going to have a secure future."

The minister also said cultural industries have been protected; she made the statement in the context that Canada's cultural industries were doing well in the context of increasing economic co-operation between Canada and the United States. She added Canada's multicultural heritage has not suffered, but grown in the last 30 years of increasing economic interdependence.

The minister cited eight benefits of the trade pact.

"The Auto Pact is improved," she said. "Replacement parts and tires will trade duty-free."

"Canadian professionals can go to the United States and sell their brains and services and gain something for themselves and Canada.

"A $4 billion market has opened up."

McDougall also told the PCs lower tariffs would benefit consumers "because we will be able to buy from expanded services."

The regional affairs minister also said northern Ontario could benefit from the deal, since processing lumber, minerals, and other raw products would take place, with semi-finished products able to travel freely across the border.

The minister also said Canada's poorer regions would have a better chance at growth. She said nothing beyond the statement.

McDougall said she supports the trade pact not only with her head but also with her heart.

"We have strong cultural industries, a strong cultural presence," she said. "What is a nation? What makes us what we are?"

"To be a sovereign nation, we have to look at the future."
