

Penalty-free hockey?

More than 300,000 amateur hockey players across Ontario will be encouraged to play safer hockey and win prizes in a new program supported by the private sector and the provincial government. In addition, all major hockey organizations in the province have approved the program and endorsed it to run in their areas.

Esso Penalty Free Sweepstakes is a contest created by the Hockey Development Centre for Ontario to promote skills, safety and good sportsmanship in amateur hockey. Sponsored by Esso Petroleum Canada and supported by the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation, and Paul Henderson, former National Hockey League player, the event will run from January 9 to 23, 1988, with the final seven days coinciding with Minor Hockey Week.

"Esso is pleased to support this very important initiative by the members of the Hockey Development Centre for Ontario. We think the emphasis on skills, safety and good sportsmanship is timely and appropriate and can only enhance the enjoyment of the game by all participants from players to coaches to parents and fans," said Tom Hansen of Esso Petroleum Canada.

"This initiative is a good example of how the Government of Ontario and the private sector can work in co-operation towards the goal of safety in amateur hockey," said Hugh O'Neil, Minister of Tourism and Recreation. "My Ministry is committed to ensuring safety in all amateur sports in the province."

Under the contest rules, teams playing penalty-free games during the Sweepstakes period will be eligible to win any of a wide range of prizes and every player on every team submitting an eligible entry will receive a Certificate of Achievement and an Esso Penalty Free Sweepstakes winner's crest. Having completed a penalty-free game the team just submits a Sweepstakes entry form supported by a copy of the game sheet to the contest headquarters at the H.D.C.O. office. Entry forms are available from minor hockey associations, arena managers and Ministry field offices across the province.

Draws from the eligible entries submitted will be held Saturday, February 6, 1988 at the H.D.C.O. offices to determine the winners.

In Ontario there are 70,000 players and 4,000 teams registered with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and well over 200,000 affiliated players on 12,000 teams all eligible for the Esso Penalty Free Sweepstakes.
