Saturday night's performance at Ste. Marie among the Hurons turned out to be a trilogy -- of two.

The third West Coast native creation story had to be cancelled because the day before one performer from Inner Stage was pierced in the eye by the long beak of the Raven.

In the stories, it was the Raven who changed the order of things. He started the tides by unseating the Man who Sat on the Tide.

The second tale told the story of the first seals.

The company explained that the missing tale was about Yes-No, a little spirit, who can't find a body to live in. The Raven gets him to choose the body of a shaman.

Inner Stage, with members from Canada and the United States, black, white and native, calls itself a company of mixed nations. Members answered questions from the audience after the performance.

They use drama, dance, music, mime and mask work to tell their stories.

Ron Cook, a native performer from Winnipeg, played the drum and chanted.

Water and sewer rates to be hiked in Tay Township

Tay Township water users will pay 4.57 per cent more in 1989, with rates going to $183 from $175 a year.

Again this year the municipality will have watering restrictions in case of need. Watering lawns or gardens, car washing and topping off swimming pools can be restricted or prohibited.

Swimming pools should not be filled with township water at any time, councillor Lynn Morton pointed out during last week's council meeting.

Vacant lots fronting on a municipal water system will pay a $25 lot levy.

Sewer users in the township will pay an extra dollar a month in 1989.
