

The Scrag Book.

Here Wit in bright effluvia glow, With Wisdom joined, through rhyme and prose...

Quick Doctors are considered 'drivers' of the 'last stage' of disease.

Francis Pigg, of Indiana, has run away from Mrs. Pigg and four little Figs.

A lady recently put up at the Jovington House, Kentucky, with husband and thirty-two children, all her own!

The man who minds his own business was in town on Saturday, but left immediately, as he felt so lonesome.

'Is it not very curious,' said an old gentleman, a few days since, to his friend, 'that a watch should be perfectly dry, when it has a running spring inside?'

The other day, an old lady rushed into the garden in search of her daughter, on being told that the young lady had gone there with a 'rake.'

A genius has discovered a process for converting old toppers into carriage boxes.—Their superiority for that purpose consists in their being always dry.

A Dutchman thus describes the New Yorkers:—'Fine people' says he; 'they go about the streets all day, sneezing each other, and they call that business.'

A Miss Wood recently recovered ten thousand dollars damages for a breach of promise of marriage from a faithless swain. High price for wool, we think.

Punch says that every family ought to keep a kitten to amuse the children. They should also keep children to amuse the kitten.

Let me never fancy I have zeal till my heart overflows with love for every man living. We should like to see such sentiments more fashionable.

It is said that the early bird picks up the worm; but gentlemen who smoke and ladies who dance till three o'clock in the morning, will do well to consider that the worm also picks up the early bird.

A lady being about to marry a man who was very low in stature, was told that he was a very bad fellow.

'Well,' says she, 'if he is bad, there is one comfort—there's very little of him.'

'Oh, Mary, Mary, my heart is breaking!' 'Is it, indeed? so much the better for you, sir.' 'Why so my idol?'

'Because, when it is broken, you can sell the pieces for gun-flints.'

A Gentleman of Alabama was lying in bed one morning, when a friend, stepping in, said, 'P—breakfast is coming on.'

'Let it come,' exclaimed P—, 'with a look of defiance, 'I'm not afraid of it.'

An office seeker, in urging his 'claims' said that his grandfather didn't fight in the Revolutionary war, but he guessed he would have liked to if he had been in the country at the time. He was repeated.

If your coat is comfortable, wear it two or three months longer; no matter if the glass is off. If you have no wife get one; if you have, God bless her; stay at home with her, instead of spending your evenings in expensive fooleries.

Be honest, frugal, plain—seek content and happiness at home—be industrious and persevering; and our word for it, if you are in debt you will soon get out of it; if your circumstances are now embarrassed, they will soon become easy.

A poor bachelor, after coming out at the small end of the horn in all his matrimonial attempts, pathetically exclaims: When I remember all The girls I've met together, I feel, like a rooster in the fall, Exposed to every weather; I feel like one who treads alone, Some barn-yard all deserted, Whose oats are fled whose hens are dead Or off to market started.

Having in my youth notions of severe piety, says a celebrated Persian writer, I used to rise in the night to watch, pray, and read the Koran. One night when I was engaged in these exercises, my father, a man of practical virtue, awoke while I was reading.

'Behold,' said I to him, 'thy other children are lost in irreligious slumber, while I alone wake to praise God.'

'Son of my soul,' he answered, 'it is better to sleep than to wake to remark the faults of your brethren.'

A Melodra was some few years since played in a certain theatre, the chief actor in which had made himself, from his haughty and overbearing conduct, disliked by one and all. In the last scene he was supposed to visit the tomb of his ancestors. In the centre of the stage, upon a marble pedestal, stood the statue of his father. A heavy flood of drapery covered the figure. Enter Albert—

'Once again,' he says, 'to gaze upon those features which in life so often gazed on me with tenderest affection. Father, thy mourning now comes to pay thee adoration. Let me remove the veil which from the vulgar gaze shields the beloved image of a once dear parent!' Off went the drapery, and behold the father stood upon his head! The effect cannot be described—it was electric. The shouts of laughter which followed the mistake of the scene, which changed to the next as quick as possible, amid the bravos of the audience, the anger of the manager, and the unaccountable rage of the actor.

The Hog Market.

The Cincinnati Gazette of the 3rd, inst., says that Hogs were not pressed and the feeling was, if anything, better than on yesterday. There appeared to be buyers for all there were offered, at $4.80 a 4.90 for light and $5 a 5.10 for lots averaging 200 to 230 lbs. It required heavy, well fattened animals to bring anything over $5. The receipts were considerably less than for either of the past three days. The weather was also more favorable.

We learn from the Chicago Tribune that the receipts of Hogs and sales yesterday were very large, though we cannot quote the market active or firm. Indeed we never saw so many drovers, buyers, packers, shippers, commission merchants, and others interested in the Hog trade as there were at Myrick's and the Alton railroad depot yesterday afternoon: yet buyers were quite loth to pay high rates. The sales yesterday reached over 1500 head, at prices from $8.70 a 4.60. Lots amounting to 700 head were sold together at $4, gross, but it required a good salesman and nice figuring to do it. A very nice lot, of 100 head of even, fat, choice, hogs sold at $3.95, gross, for shipment to New York; 40 car loads of Hogs were received on the Burlington road, about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, most of which were sold. It is a good time to slaughter, and packers are doing well in disposing of the offal. Two or three packing firms are buying, and some are slaughtering on Canadian and New York account, grain dealers having gone in to the Hog trade. Some sales of Mess Pork are about being made, on fair terms.

How to MAKE A HOGS DRAW.—I once knew a man that bought a fine looking sorrel mare, that was false as a boat could be, but she was finally cured to perfection in the following way: He geared her to the cart, and went to the cornfield to get a load of pumpkins. After he got some ten or a dozen she thought she had too much load and refused to pull. He covered and patted her for some time but all to no purpose. He next got a stick and thumped and thrashed with the same success. He then thought he would try another plan.—He got a wheelbarrow and wheeled pumpkins enough to make a full load, and put in the cart when he took her by the head again but it was no go. He started home and concluded she might either pull the load or stand there until the day of judgment. But when the sun began to get low she began to think about her supper and started home, passing skillfully through three sets of bars, and arriving at the barn in safety, with her load. He put her in the stable, and fed her as if nothing had happened. She refused to pull as two other times, but she got the same treatment each time, so she found it was no use, for she had to pull the load in the end. After that she became as good a beast to work as ever was hitched.

A Wag was one day speaking of two of his acquaintances who had gone out West, where the new comers were usually attacked the first season with the ague; said he, 'Neither of those two men will be affected by it.' 'Why not?' inquired a bystander. 'Because,' was the reply, 'one of them is too lazy to shake, and the other won't shake unless he gets pay for it.'

INSANITY.

We do not like to write roughly, but we must inveigh against the mockish sentimentalities of the times, that mistaken philanthropy of a certain class of men, who, brought up in early life without any religious training, yet possessing a high grade of intellect and large-heartedness, strike out into the limitless sea of human amelioration, with heads full of crude theories and hypothetical impossibilities, believing themselves and causing some of the weaker folks to believe likewise, that they are going to regenerate the world in double quick time—to take a short cut towards the millennial era, and inaugurate a heaven on earth. But having no Bible for their polar star, they soon 'fetch up' on the breakers of human depravity, and, in less than a lifetime, a perfect wreck is made of all their hopes, and they conclude to wait for the coming of that more propitious age when men shall be 'less selfish,' when, if they had read the Bible, they would have found in the outset, that the very first command in the Christian system was directed against that very principle in the utterance of the Saviour, when he would describe the first step towards an elevation to a better and higher nature: 'Deny thyself, take up thy cross, then follow me.'

This very class of persons, Pfaff, and Fourier and Ann Lee with Dale Owen, and Theodore Parker, and Brisbane, and the lesser lights, such as Pearl, Andrews, Hine, Garrison, Thompson, F. Wright, Nichols, and others of a kindred nature, Woman's Rights people, Bloomerites, Radical Abolitionists, Vegetarians, Water Curers, Spiritualists, Table Tippers, and all that; through all these classes of people there runs a certain vein of pseudo-philanthropy and rank infidelity, bordering on Atheism, which shows with perfect plainness that they are radically one and the same thing—enemies of the Christian religion, rushing with reckless indifference into the plausible and untried—all careless of what ruinous consequences may follow, and will follow, should their plans fail. We may with great safety set it down as an incontrovertible fact, that the moment a man begins to improve on Bible philanthropy that moment he becomes a fool.—Turning every woman into a hermaphrodite, the reckless instantaneous freeing millions of thrifless and improvident slaves, sweeping half the good things of this life from our tables, dismantling our dwellings, cutting the useless buttons from our coats, converting our statuary into lime for manure, covering our cattle with the canvass which records the genius of immortal artists, the dissolution of the marriage tie, 'made easy' as the untying of an old shoe, huging the heartless murderer to their bosom the moment he is found out, and screening scoundrels of every grade from the penalties of the law, through the tender mercies of the Insane Asylum—these, we say, are but a part of the attempts to improve on Bible mercy, on Bible polity. How none of them have succeeded, how all of them have miserably failed, and always will fail, present observations teach, and the true historians of future times have nothing to do but to reiterate the lesson.

It is to one only of these pretended benevolences that we designed to draw attention, when we wrote the heading of this article—the Plea of Insanity, which is now so rife, and which is to become the scapegoat of every infraction of law, and justice, and right. Already has it come to pass, that, if a man eats himself to death, or guzzles bad liquor until he can guzzle no more, or studies himself to a skeleton, and then jumps into the river, or puts a bullet through his heart, the merciful verdict is, 'He is insane.' If he forges his friend's name or fires his neighbor's dwelling or his own store to secure the insurance; or if a young lady allows herself to be abducted by another woman's husband, or a hysterical daughter of a millionaire marries her father's coachman, the convenient cloak of 'insanity' is benevolently thrown around the delinquencies and aberrations, and next day the weak and the unprincipled alike show themselves in the streets, the 'observed of all observers,'—the lions of the hour.

Is heaven-born charity and her sister, true benevolence; to thus mantle over all that is dishonorable and murderous, and to cover lechery from our sight? These things ought not so to be. The true philanthropists of our day and generation should wake up to the discovery of an effectual remedy for these evils.

But, not to make our article too long, we propose, in short, that all persons be tried for the crimes fairly charged against them. Let the majority of the jury decide on the verdict as to the fact of the act; then let the plea of insanity come. If not sustained let the law take its course. If sustained, let the person be committed to an Insane Asylum for life, if the crime was a capital one, or, if cured of their insanity, to be transferred to the penitentiary for the remnant of their days.

If the act be only a penitentiary offence, let them be sent to the Asylum, to remain for life, or until cured; and when cured, let them serve the same time in the penitentiary which they would have done had they not been declared insane. For beyond question, if insane, the Asylum is the proper place for them; if not insane the penitentiary should not be cheated of its workmen. In other words, either have no laws or enforce those which have been enacted.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Canada Type Foundry. REMOVED TO ST. THERESA ST., IN DEBERRA'S BUILDINGS, MONTREAL. THE Proprietors of this Establishment beg to inform the Printers of Canada, that they have now manufactured and ready for delivery, a large quantity of Small Pica, Long Primer, Dantons, and Brevier, of Scotch type, which they will guarantee cannot be surpassed by any Foundry upon this continent for durability and appearance. They have also on hand a choice assortment of various kinds of Ornamental Type. The prices at which these and other types are sold at the Canada Type Foundry, will be found at least 30 per cent less than they could be purchased previous to its establishment. It is therefore hoped that the Printers of Canada will show their appreciation of the advantages it holds out, by bestowing upon it a fair share of their patronage, in return for which the proprietors pledge themselves to leave no means untired to give ample satisfaction. Printers mark the reduction in the price of type since this Foundry was opened, and upon whom a mind that a greater reduction depends upon your selves. Our motto is—supply the trade with type of such quantities and at such prices as will prevent the necessity of patronizing foreign manufacturers. The following list of a few of the principal articles required by printers, will give an idea of the great advantages of the Canada Type Foundry.— PRICES. Nonpareil - - - - - 2s 6d per lb.
