to be discontinued after the present year."

The amendment was negatived by 54 to 62.

Mr. HOGAN moved, "that it is the opinion of this House that in the present depressed state of every interest in the country, it is not expedient to expend $17,604 for sixteen troops of cavalry, but that in order to continue the present organization, one day's drill annually should be provided for, instead of 10."

The amendment was lost by 62 to 39.

TUESDAY, July 16.

The order of the Day for receiving the report of the Committee on Supply being read, the first item was "Contingent expenses of Legislative Assembly, (exclusive of indemnity to members) £230,000."

Hon. Mr. CAYLEY proposed that the official salaries of members of the Executive Council should be reduced to what they stood at in 1854, namely £1,000, and those of the Solicitors General to £600. On all other salaries, including those in all services under the direction of the Government, as the Customs for instance, it was proposed that there should be a reduction of 10 per cent. The saving thus effected would be, in the Provincial Secretary's Department, $2,221 ; in the Registrar General's $716 ; in the Receiver General's, $1,381 ; in the Inspector General's, $1,645 ; in the Customs Branch, $1,080 ; Audit, $940 ; Bureau of Agriculture, $1,022 ; Executive Council, $1 074 ; Public Works, $2,040 ; Crown Lands, $1,300 ; Executive salaries, $11,200. Total, about $24,000, not including the reduction at the different Customs Ports throughout the country, which would be large.

On which there was a very long and animated discussion.

SATURDAY, July 3

Hon. Mr. CAMERON moved that the adjourned debate on his motion relative to Representation, (the first Order on the paper) be postponed until Monday, and that it be made the first Order for that day. He said he moved this resolution in order that Bills in the hands of private members might be advanced a stage without further delay.

Mr. BROWN moved in amendment, that as the Session is now near its close, unless the question of Representation by Population be proceeded with to-day, it is not likely to be disposed of this Session ; and it is expedient to proceed with the consideration of this important question at once, pursuant to a special Order of the House.

The original motion was carried by 68 to 30.

Mr. GALT moved that the House go into Committee on the Bill to amend the Acts relating to the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada.

Passed the following day.

MONDAY, July 5.

The discussion on Representation by population was again resumed.

A BRITISH PACIFIC RAILROAD.

While the people and the Congress of the United States are talking about a railroad to the Pacific, quarrelling over its location, and devising new schemes of plunder in connection with it, England and Canada are actively engaged in the undertaking, and, with the advantage of having a shorter route, and a portion of their line completed. The idea is entirely new to us ; but, if our reader our readers will take a railroad map, and see what a commencement of this work the Grand Trunk Railroad forms, its practicability will be evident at once. The Grand Trunk road has one terminus at Portland, the deepest port, we presume, on the Atlantic seaboard. The other Eastern terminus is at Quebec, Montreal being, in fact, the principal point of shipping and trade. The road thus runs West eight hundred and fifty miles, passing through Toronto to the town of Stratford. From this point it is proposed to push it to Vancouver on the Pacific shore, a distance of three thousand miles more. The Portland branch is built with British money. Thus, the English are 850 miles on their way from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and are taking steps for the further progress of the work. We, in the meantime, are doing nothing towards getting into our hands the immense carrying trade between Asiatic and European parts.

The Journal del Empire, of Paris, gives the details of the movement in its present aspect. It seems that a great expenditure is about to start from London, to be commanded by Colonel Elliott of the Royal Engineers, and composed of a company of sixty engineers and a troop of forty men, under command of Captain Haig. At Vancouver these will be joined by one hundred men who are to act as pioneers,, selected from the most experienced and hardy servants of the Hudson's bay Company. Then the expedition will make its surveys for the completion of the road.

At Sarnia, situated at the foot of Lake Huron, and the opposite end of the River St. Clair from Detroit, the Grand Trunk Road is intended to take up for the benefit of Canada a trade which, in 1855, amounted to sixty millions sterling—a trade which formerly went by Buffalo, and the withdrawal of which has caused the ruin of the Ontario and St. Lawrence lines of steamers already. In short, it is intended that the products of a large sweep of our western country, the undeveloped resources of the vast regions of British North America, and the European trade with Asia, shall pass over this road, with important Atlantic termini, both on British and American soil. The plan seems to be very comprehenvive and complete, and to possess tropical advantages and relations that will make Canada a powerful competitor with America in the race of empire. It will make of Canada a new realm. The enthusiastic French writer to whom we have alluded, thinks that Sarnia will soon take the place of Buffalo, and Montreal that of New York, "blotting out, commercially, both of those places from the high position they now occupy as trading cities." This will not be, though doubtless both may be interfered with in their growth, and take new relations, one to the trade of the country —the other to that of the world. Now, does it not appear important to do something for our own Pacific project ? Here is an exigency. The world wants and needs this road ; the British capitalists and the British Government have the land on which to build it, and a short and practicable route, with 850 miles of it completed. Can any one doubt that this immense enterprise will be pushed forward when the stake played for is so great, and the facilities of the game are so apparent ? —Springfield Republican.

MUTINY IN A FRENCH "FREE-LABOUR" SHIP.

MASSACRE OF 250 OF THE NEGRO PASSENGERS.

The only news by the Ethiope steamer is the mutiny of the passengers of the Regina Cœni, Captain Simon. This vessel is a French ship of 420 tons, employed under the new trade to procure natives for labour in the French colonies. She had been about a month off the neighborhood of Cape Palmas, and had succeeded in collecting on board as many as 500 of the soi-disant emigrants. The Regina Cœni was fitted up in every respect as a slave ship, and her passengers had been induced to take a passage in her for a better country, and where, they were told, their circumstances would be much improved. The vessel was ostensibly to sail for the Mauritius, although it was said her destiny was probably near the Havannah. Immediately on the arrival of the emigrants on board they found themselves confined as close prisoners, the regular slave irons being produced. A feeling of distrust among them that they had been kidnapped was the consequent result. About the 7th or 8th of April, the captain having allowed too large a number of his passengers on deck, while a large portion of his crew were about to leave the vessel in a boat, the former seized the ship's guns and muskets, liberated their companions, and opened fire on the boats ; a scene of massacre ensued. About six of the crew and the captain were on shore ; all the rest were murdered, with the exception of the doctor, whose life was spared, and two of the crew, who were preserved to steer the ship. This affair took place off Cape Mount on the 13th of April. About 200 of the mutineers swam ashore. The whole of them were murdered as they landed by natives, under the command of the captain of the vessel. The Ethiope subsequently went in search of the Regina, and fell in with her off the Galleus, when, after a brief parley, the remainder of the emigrants on board agreed to surrender to Captain Croft. The vessel was taken into Monrovie, where she remains in charge of Mr M'Kelvie, purser of the Ethiope, for an adjudication of salvage. Her passengers made their escape immediately on her arrival.

ORSINI'S LAST LETTER.—The following letter, written by Felice Orsini within an hour of his execution, is published in the London journals :—"From the Roquette, 13th March 1858 ; six in the morning. My dear and faithful friend — By the time this letter reaches you they will have cut off my head, and this heart, which now beats so strongly for thee, will be cold and immovable. . . . . In sixty minutes all will be over. . . . . Between the two, at first sight it would seem that I, and not you, would need comfort ; and yet it is not so. I am at the end of a tedious journey ; to thee, now to grief, who knows how many years of trial remain ? Far from sorrowing for me, you should joy that I shall enter into the port with the flag flying. Behold me, erect still, upon the confines of existance. To render you a sincere account of the sentiments which agitate me, know that I find myself strong and tranquil in the presence of the physical pain of death, as I am full of curiosity to see what there is beyond it ; and instead of looking back upon the past, I look forward as if to discern the objects in a far-off horizon. What do I in reality leave behind me to make me anxious for a longer sojourn among men ? The name of Felix has been for me an incessant and cruel irony. Educated from a child in the inexorable school of misfortune, I have been compelled to consider the sentiment of grief rather as a familiar and assidous host, or as the shadow of my body. In fact, I knew that I was destined to wear myself out in the fulfilment of my duties, and I even prophesied a long time ago the exact kind of death to which I am destined. But I have not diverged a single line from my track, not a complaint has escaped my lips ; before surrendering I have fired my last cartridge upon the enemy. Approaching death is the veteran's discharge—a repose too just and too long sighed for. I confide the defence of my memory to thee, for the honour of Italy and my family. A person to whom I can confide will deliver this . . . . to thee ; by another hand you will receive some . . . . in which, in haste and in spite of my spies, I have detailed these two months of agony. Endeavor to get them printed. I believe they will be read with avidity, because when once the cloud of contemporaneous passions shall be dissipated, the truth will be revealed, and the great sacrifices appreciated as highly as they merit. I take underground with met one pang—a searing pang—that of nor being able to embrace my poor children again, or give them the last farewell, o bless them, at least, at a distance, through the bars of my prison. Even the sad consolation of seeing them has been denied me ; perhaps it is better so, a none of my slayers will have seen me weep! Oh! my friend, if thou couldst cast a glance upon my body—if thou shouldst see me again before they bury me, thou wouldst read in my inanimate face how much I have suffered in my mind. I have confidence that thou will not forget those two innocent creatures—in an hour, orphans ! —Transfer to them that treasure of affection which thou hast lavished upon me while alive, and receive in return the heritage of my last grief.—Farewell, for ever, FELICE ORSINI."

The Quebec Mercury says that on Thursday last John C. On Friday morning the jury had not agreed.

A SCOTTISH JOURNALIST IN DIFFICULTIES IN AMERICA.—The New York Correspondent of the Scottish Typographical Circular for this month say :—A row occurred in the camp of the Scottish American Journal about three weeks ago, caused by an attempt, on the part of two of the proprietors, to eject the deservedly popular editor, Mr. Finlay, from his post. It seems that some misunderstanding had taken place between these two gents and Mr. Finlay ; but, instead of getting this quietly arranged, what do these gentlemen do one Wednesday morning, but proceed to the machine after the paper had been put to press, order the printing to be stopped, and insert a paragraph to the effect that Finlay was no longer editor of the Journal. Mr. F. came into the press-room just as they ordered the machine man to go on printing, and of course, was rather astonished to see the aspect of affairs He ordered the forms to be taken off the press, and went to see about doing so himself, but this did not suit the ideas of one of the shareholders, who, pulling out a pistol, said, with an oath, "If you touch these forms, sir, I'll shoot you!" This was a poser ; but Finlay soon managed the belligerent gentleman by getting a warrant sworn out against him immediately, and getting him lodged in the Tombs (the prison) The publication of the paper was delayed two days in consequence of this, but now it goes on again as usual. Mr. Finlay having made an arrangement whereby he has the whole thing in his own hands. [Mr. Finlay here referred to is a native of Edinburgh, and was for a considerable time connected with the press of this city—first as sub-editor of the Caledonia Mercury, and subsequently as editor of the Edinburgh Guardian and the War Telegraph, both of which papers he projected.]—Edinburgh News

GRAVEL AND STONE.

By this we understand a collection of sand-like substance having been lodged in the passage of the urine. When the system is in a healthy state this substance is carried off by the natural passage of the body ; but when there is a weakness of the organ, especially the kidneys, urethra, or the bladder, causing great inflamation to these organs, and great pains and swelling, and great difficulty in voiding urine. It has been admitted by many physicians, that Morse's Indian Root Pills are made out of some particular plants which have a wonderful charming influence in dissolving the substance which has clogged the passage, and by their cooling properties, they expel all inflamation, and leave the water passage in an active and healthy state. From three to four of these Pills night and morning, from one to two weeks, will decide how this dreadful disease is to be treated, and as they remove the cause of every kind of disease, it is utterly impossible for them to fail in curing the gravel, as they unclog the passage, and leave the parts in a healthy and lively condition.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are sold by all dealers in Medicines.

MOFFAT'S Life Pills and Phoenix Bitters. Horse Shoeing—Read.

I AM anxious to make public the very great skill in HORSE SHOEING and SMITH WORK in general, that is daily shown by Messrs. J. & R. ELLIOT, in the Village of Thornhill. I have been credibly informed of several cures that thy have effected on horses for lameness, by their Veterinary skill, in the method of Shoeing, after many others had failed. I took a horse to them myself, [after trying several Veterinary Surgeons in Toronto, who could do him no good] and to my utter surprise, after their once shoeing him, he got properly sound, although having been for a length of time unable to work. I think that Farmers and others, owners of horses ought to feel proud that they have such Mechanics among them, and that they will duly patronize them.
