GREAT PRITAIN. On the 20th, the Lords were not in session and the Commons were engaged in debating the marriage law. On the 1st, in the Lords, the question of the admission of Jews into Parliament was taken up. Lord Derby receded from his op position to the measure. He belived it was impossible to tomintain, inviolate the principles for which their loadships have so long been contending, without bringing themselves into collision with the House of Commons, therefore he constdered it the duty of the House to consider whether there was any possibility Lucan, that the Commons should be allowed to dispense by resolution with the words on the . faith of a Christian,' when a member of the Jewish persuasion applied to take his seat, afforded the only sodo non of the difficulty, and therefore, though with great regret he was prepared to accept the measure. Lord Lyndhurst consented to pestpone his bill, and Lord Lucan in moving the second reading of his measure, explained, that it gave the House of Commons the power of omitting the words- On the true faith of a Chris tian,' by resolution, but required that any member of the Jewish persuasion should present himse f in the first instance at the now stood. After some debate, the second reading was carried by 143 to 97. mised to reduce.
