By this act the old system of "Gross-Weight," that is making a ton to consist of twenty cwts. of 112 lbs. gach, has been abolished, and the "hundred weight" of all goods, wares, and other commodities weatsoever, sold by the hundred weight, or ton weight in this province, shall contain and consist of one pundred pourds, avoirdupoise, and not of wo thousand two hundred and forty pounds, as beretotore.

This change will probably effect hay more than anything else, as a ton consists now of 2,000 lbs. instead of 2,240 lbs, as heretofore; and in buying and selling the article for the future, this dis-tinction will have to be borne in min in regulating the price. The 100 lbs... instead of the old 112 is now the stand-

IRISHMEN IN AMERICA.—Every Irishman in the Southern States, without exception, who can afford to buy negroes straightway buys them. Some of the largest and next successful planners in the ception, who can afford to buy negroes straightway buys them. Some of the largest and treet successful planters in the Southern States are born Jrishmen; and the finest plantation that has been purchased in America for many years, with five lundred and sixty negroes upon it, was bast winter sold in Louisiana; the query chaser was an Irishman. Not only is there a large number of high-born crizens at the South who own slaves, but most of the Southern planters and slaveholders, we are proud to say, are Irish by descent. Our acquaintance with Irish born crizens at the South is very extensive; and we never met with one of them who is not inflavour of reviving the slave trale with Africa, save one; and he is a very large slaveholder aiready, and wants no more Irish citizens at the North, though they have no personal interest in slavery, almost universally give their votes to let it none (which is all trait is asked of them) because they have no business with it, no responsibility for it; because it exists under the constitution; by which same constitution their own rights and liberties exist.

PROFESSOR STEINER'S NARRATIVE

From the Globe. successiul vojage aeross Lake Op tario by Frolessor Steiner, is an epoch in the history of genestation. Many lives have been lost in the endeavor to passover large codies of water in a balloon, and the attempt is always attended with more than ordinary danger. In undertaking to cross Lake Ontario, Professor stemer accepted a task, the accomplish-ment or which has placed him aread of an competitors. No other man has made an competitors. No other man has made an length, having water underpeath him nearly at the way. The ascent was made from this city at 4, 20 p.m., on the 24th mst, and in 15 minutes the balloon attained an attitude of 5,000 feet, the wind carrying it in a south easterly direction as rate of thous thick water set was the manual of the state of the south cast water of them thick water active for the south cast water of them thick water actives. The 'Steelyards,' or some other weighing machine, will now supersede the old half-bushel and peck measures in burtering all kinds of farm produce. The change is decidedly for the better, and cannot fail to give general satisfaction, as the old system of measuring was desired. The balloon began to descend a rate of about thirty miles per hour Inthe north and it majestic stence floated east-wards. The bailoin began to descend and it required the discharge of a considcannot ful to give general satisfaction, as the old system of measuring was defective and unsufficiently in many ways, as the actual quartity must vary very much according to the size of the roots measured. This difficulty is now entirely obviated, and the purchaser will get his 'pound,' as well as the seller his 'price.'

They scanned Pro-lessor Steiner very narrowly, expecting to and in his countenance some resemblance to the man in the moon. He soon produced assistance and had it taken to Oswego. Professor Steiner says he is satisfied that a permanent current exists running from west to east, but that it is at so great a height that no balloon which has yet seen made is large enough to navigate it for any considerable length of time. To to so well would require a balloon which would support her burden when half filled with gas, which, in the current, would exand to the full extent, so great is the neight.
