THE WEE PICKLE MEAL.

BY JAMES NORVAS,

i mind, when I was goyan young—
Ay, geyan young atweel—
There cam a puir wife to our door
Bogging a pickle meal.
She socht it wi's bitter wail
That stopp'd my militer's wheel—
Wi'Wassocks mel and Guid bless theel Gio me a wee tate meal!"

My mither bang'd up frae her wheel.
And cried "Guid help the puir!" And cried "educt neip me pur r'
And wi' a licht and eager Agep
She cross'd the kithhen flure.
Her hand shook at the awmry door,
Like some ane gaun to steal,
When fras our wee meal-pock she drew
A goupinfu' o' meal.

Ye mauna greet," my mither said:
"Come dicht—eh, dicht your een:
For I can see in that pale face
That better days you've seen;
And I can read in thy fu'e'e
Ye hae a heart can feel For ither's wass; sae tak frae me A blessing wi' the meal."

The beggan wife was sair owercome,
She shook in every nerve—
"Was't no, 'she said, "for such as thee
The like o' me micht starve.
I've wander'd unco far the day, The like - Ye wander'd unco far the usy,
'Mang hearts as cauld as steel;
M's hard to hirple down life's brac
Beggin' a pick'e meai!

"Wacs me, I hae seen better days,
But noo, slack, they're gone!
Fee had on earth a' that could mak'
A woman proud and fain.
My kind gudennan frae me was born
To war's red battle-fiel';
He fell; and I maun either dee,
Or beg my pickle meal,

"We had twa bonnie, sonsie bairns— Dear Mary and wee John— Wha baith sleep noo aneath the yaird Beside the banks o' Don. Beside me banks of Don.
But when I think on at tive born.
Wi'grief the wa's I'd speel;
For noo I'm left in waning life
To beg a pickle moal!"

Full thirty years has row'd awa
To memory's dusky shore.
Since that puir woman tau'd her tale
At my kind mother't door.
My mitter's game whaur a "maun gang;
And nane but me can feel
The hallow'd burden o' my saug—
That goupintu' o' meel.

THE WORK OF CREATION.

The Creator has spoken, and the stars look out from openings of deep unclouded blue; and as day rises, and the planet of morning pales in the east, the broken cloudlets are transmitted from bronze into gold. and anon the gold becomes fire, and at length the glorious sun arises out of the seas, and enters on his, course rejoicing. It is a brilliant day, the waves of a deeper and softer blue It is a brilliant day, the than before, dance and sparkle in the light; the earth, with little less to attract the gaze, has assumed a garb of brighter green; and as the sun declines amid even richer glories than those which had encircled his rising, the moon appears full orbed in the east—to the human eye second great luminary of the heavens-and great infinity of the neavers—and climes slowly to the zenith as night advances, shedding its mild radiance on land and sea. Again the day breaks; the prospect consists, as before, of land and ocean. There are great pine woods, red-covered swamps, wide plains, winding rivers, and broad lakes; and a bright sun shines over all. But the landscape derives its interest and novelty from a feature unmarked before. Gigantic birds stalk along the sands, or wade far into the waters in quest of their ichthyic food, while birds of lesser size float upon the lakes, or scream discordant in hovering flocks, thick as insects in the calm of a summer evening, over the narrower seas or brighten with the sunlight gleam of their wings the thick woods. ocean had its monsters great 'tan-inim' tempest the deep as the have their huge bulk over the surface to inhale the life sustaining air; and out of their nostrils goeth smoke, as out of a seething pot or cauldren.' Nact No. 2.—These Machines make the lock-atick—alike on both sides—and use a little less than helf as much litreda and silk as the chain or loop-stitch machines.

Fact No. 3.—These Machines are better adapted than any other sewing machines in the market to the frequent changes and almost endless variety of sewing required in a family. They will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseithes without stopping, and make every stitch perfect. They will even sew from the finest gauze to the heaviest cloth, and even stout, hard leather, without changing the feed, needle, or tension, or making any adjustment of machine whatever. Is not such a machine hest adapted to family use, with part for every variety of light sewing manufacture? For work too heavy for our Family Machines, we recommend our larger sizes.

neary for our Family Machine, we recom-mend our larger sizes. Acr No. 4.—These Machines make the most cleatic seems of any sewing-machine in use— a fact of very great unportance in sew-ing cleasic goods, or goods of any kind, ou a bias.

Fact No. 5.—No Machine is more durable or more simple in its construction or more easily understood. The reputation of these Ma-chines wherever used will fully demonstrate each of the above Facts.
