

Poetry.

THE EVENING HEARTHSTONE, Gladly now we gather round it, For the falling day is done, And the gray and solemn twilight, Follows down the golden sun;

Miscellaneous.

To cure deafness, tell a man you've come to pay him money. It beats acoustic of all hollow. Young ladies are like arrows—they are all in a quiver till the beaux come, and can't go off without him.

'Och!' cried Paddy, 'I'll never be able to put on these boots till I have worn them a week or two.' A contemporary says a female recruit in Rochester was detected by trying to put her pants on over her head.

'Father, what does the printer live on?' 'Why, child?' 'Because you said you hadn't paid him for four years, and still take the paper?' 'Wife spank that child.'

Farmers never relish the news of good crops in other countries. It goes too much against the grain. To kill Cockroaches.—Get a pair of heavy boots, then catch your roaches, put them in a barrel, then get in yourself and dance.

When your wife begins to scold draw up to the stove, put your feet up, and enjoy a comfortable smoke while the storm is raging. How long did Adam remain in Paradise before he sinned? said an omnibus spouse to her husband. 'Till he got a wife,' was the reply.

You may wish to get a wife without a failing; but what if the lady, after you find her, happens to be in want of a husband of the same character. Said a purchaser to a horse-dealer, 'Is that animal safe-footed?' 'Perfectly,' said the jockey; 'when he puts his foot down, you'd think he never was going to take it up.'

An Irish couple a few evenings since at about 9 o'clock rang the door bell of one of the Protestant clergymen of New Bedford. The door was opened by the clergyman, who on enquiring what they wanted, was informed by Michael that he and Bridget came to be married. 'But why?' asked the parson, 'don't you go to the priest?' 'And sure we did,' said Michael, and he told us to go to the devil, and so we came to you.'

EXTREME DELICACY.—The disposition to be agonizingly delicate is well ridiculed in the following:—'Is there anything the matter?' 'There is, sir,' was the host's reply. 'Have I given any offence?' 'You have sir.' 'Really I am ignorant of it.' 'Such language won't suit here, sir.' 'My dear sir, what language?' 'You were talking of soup.' 'We were.' 'You mentioned ox tails.' 'I did.' 'That's it, that's it, sir, raise the ladies blushing out of the room: that highly improper language which I never heard at my board before, and should not have expected it from you.' 'Why, sir, I called its proper name. You asked a question, and I replied. I am, however, sorry that it has given offence; but I really do not know how I could have avoided it.'

'Then, sir, I advise you, when you have occasion another time for that peculiar soup, do not call it ox tail.' 'No!' 'No, sir.' 'But what shall I call it?' 'A Fly dispenser.' 'I shall remember the fly dispenser soup, rest assured.'

A pretty woman is one of the 'institutions' of this country—an angel in dry-goods and glory. She makes sunshine, fourth of July, and happiness wherever she goes. Her path is one of delicious roses, perfume and beauty. She is a sweet poem written in rare colors, choice calico and good principles. Men sat up before her, as so many admiration poems. Her words float around the ear like music, or the chime of Sabbath bells. Without her, society would lose its truest attraction, the church its truest reliance, young men the very best of comforts and company. Her influence and generosity restrain the vicious, strengthen the weak, raise the lowly, flannel-shirt the heathen and strengthen the faint-hearted. Wherever you see the virtuous woman, you also find pleasant firesides, bouquets, clean clothes, order, good living, gentle hearts, piety, music, light and model institutions generally. She is the flower of humanity, a very Venus in limit, and her inspirations is the breath of heaven.

HEREDITARY QUALITIES.

Like begets like, and hence the qualities of a family will continue, if not every generation, at least appearing prominently now and then, as much as will the qualities of all lower classes of animals. Every cattle breeder knows this, and hence his desire to secure the best breeding stock. Every horse raiser recognizes the fact, and the colt, before it comes to maturity, is examined for the marks of the sire, and sells at a higher or lower price, as these are more clear or less distinct. So it is with the dog. Even acquired habits, as with the Pointer, are transmitted. Nor is it different with men. The old Greeks understood this, and provided that the race should not deteriorate during their wars.

We have the most interesting facts relating to this subject—facts indisputable, and which are worthy of remembrance. Thus we see the entire population of France diminish in stature, when the larger men were called abroad in war; and on the other hand, the inhabitants of Potsdam, in Prussia, descended from the gigantic guards of Frederick I., are taller than any other people in Prussia. Nor is size hereditary more than feature. The Jewish physiognomy has not changed since the days of Abram. We are led to infer, at the earliest times, that male Jews were not remarkable for beauty, and the females were the admiration of the rough sex.—Hence it was that the father of a race desired to pass his wife as his sister, to save her from the king of Egypt; and they were the favorites at other courts, as was Esther with the king of Persia. They have never changed. On the old sepulchral monuments of Egypt are their likenesses as we see them in our streets to-day. In the same manner the beauty of Prague is proverbial, and has been for ages. So we see the lineaments of race descend from the settlers or emigrants of a country. In Galway, the Spaniards who lived there centuries ago, have left their mark upon the people; as the French, Spaniards, English, Welsh, or Germans, have in different parts of this country.

Sometimes we see the family mark in a single feature. Thus the Bruces of Scotland to-day have the like cheek bones and jaws of Robert Bruce; and the Hapsburgs, of Austria, have the thick lip that they derived from Jagellon, the Pole; and Victoria has a lateral fullness in the face which has marked the royal family of England from George I. All the Barons de Vessins had a peculiar mark between their shoulders, and by that mark the legitimacy of one who was discovered a shoemaker's apprentice in London, was established. Every physical formation, peculiarity, or defect, has thus been known to be transmitted for generations. So have the appetites, loves, and aversions for what is material. Nor can it be denied that mental powers and characteristics as much descend from father to son. It would not do to decide questions of legitimacy upon physical or mental traits always, for we frequently see them jump a generation; but we can affirm that there is 'something in blood,' and it is upon this that since the world began we have had legitimate aristocracy; and it is not wise in marriage, or social business connections, wholly to overlook the teachings of nature.

THE SOCIAL HORROR. An untidy woman! Little soap and much perfume. Plenty of jewelry and a lack of strings and buttons.—Silk and laces, and tattered underclothes. Diamond rings and soiled collars. Feathers and flowers and battered cap frills. Silk stockings and shabby boots. Who has not seen her? If you are a person of courage enter her dressing room.—Make your way over the carpet, through mismatched slippers, tippets, belts, ribbons, hair pins, pictorials, magazines, fashion prints and unpaid bills, and look vainly round for a chair that is sufficiently free from dust to sit down upon. Look at the dingy muslin window curtains, questionable bed quilt and pillow cases, the unfitness of everything you see. Open the closet door, and see the piles of dresses all wanting the stitch in time heaped pell-mell upon their legs; see the bandboxes without covers, and all the horrible paraphernalia of a lazy, inefficient valet, idealess female monstrosity; who will, of course, be chosen out of a bevy of good, practical common sense girls, by some man who prides himself on his knowledge of woman, as his help mate for life!—I use the word advisedly; for even in a cell of a prison I have seen wretched females trying, with woman's beautiful instinct, to brighten and beautify the bare walls with some rude colored print. Thank heaven the untidy woman is the exception, not the rule. Would we could say the same of the untidy man.—Fanny Fern.

IMPORTANT IF TRUE! And every word is true.

For upwards of three years past, I have been engaged in a business, which has yielded me at the rate of $2,000 per annum, but being desirous of going to Europe in the course of a few months for the purpose of there introducing the business, I am willing to teach to any one who will send me $1. The business is no humbug, but of a highly useful and profitable nature, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $20 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is a pleasant affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentlemen and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a plea at a time, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. The purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorized to teach it to others; but he will not be permitted to charge as high as $200, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $2.50 or $3.00 will buy every thing that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or, if preferred, I can furnish them. Address, IRELAND.

NO person who contemplates purchasing a Sewing Machine for family or manufacturing purposes, should fail to send for one of our Catalogues, which contains cuts and full descriptions of the several styles, prices and samples of work, all of which we send by mail free. We claim to have the best Sewing Machines in the World.

For other Family Manufacturing purposes. And all we ask is a fair trial. Read the following: IMPORTANT FACTS.

FACT No. 1.—This Company being duly licensed, their Machines are protected against imitations or imitations.

FACT No. 2.—These Machines make a lock-stitch—like on both sides—and use a little less than half as much thread and silk as the cheap or imitation machines.

FACT No. 3.—These Machines are better adapted than any other sewing-machines in the market to the frequent changes and almost endless variety of sewing required in a family. They will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of fabric without stopping and make every stitch perfect. They will even sew from the finest gauge to the heaviest cloth, and even stout, hard leather, without changing the feed, needle, or tension, or making any adjustment of anything whatever. It is not such a machine best adapted to family use, but it is best adapted to family use, why not for every variety of light sewing manufacture? For you too heavy for our Family Machine, we recommend our best machines.

FACT No. 4.—These Machines make the most elastic seam of any sewing-machine in use—a fact of very great importance in sewing elastic goods, or goods of any kind, on a bias.

FACT No. 5.—No Machine is more durable or more simple in its construction, or more easily understood. The reputation of these Machines wherever used will fully demonstrate each of the above facts.

FACT No. 6.—These Machines took the Highest Premium at the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia.

FACT No. 7.—These Machines took the Highest Premium at the New York State Fair.

FACT No. 10.—These Machines can do the same thing generally, whenever properly exhibited in competition with other first-class Sewing-Machines. But we have space for only one fact more—in the most important part of all.

FACT No. 11.—We warrant every Machine we sell to give better satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in the market, or money refunded.
