

Poetry. OBJECTS SEEN FROM DIFFERENT POINTS OF VIEW. AN HE SAW IT. Such ribbons and roses, such ringlets and hair; Such feathers and flounces, so white and so fair; Such rosy-bred cheeks, such teeth and such eyes; Such a snowy white neck, of such delicate size; Such a bit of waist, such a love of a hand; Such a foot, such an ankle, such an air of grace, and such 'a fine figure of a woman.'

WHAT SHALL I DO WITH MY PIG. The question that heads this item was addressed to us by a literary gentleman who had just come into possession of the carcass of a fat pig, weight about 200 lbs., more or less, which he professed to know as little what to do with it as the man who won the elephant knew what to do with his prize. Whether our friend won his pig in a raffle, or came honestly by him by right of inheritance, we know not. We think he could not have purchased it, and the reason, we think is, that he is a newspaper editor. But no matter: he had got the pig, and the question is—What shall we do with it? As a like accident may happen to some other gentleman, our pig-knowledge may be useful to others in like distress. Therefore, we let our light shine.

1860. Prospectus OF THE SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY NEWSPAPER, DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF SCOTSMEN IN AMERICA, AND TO THE DISSEMINATION OF SCOTTISH LITERATURE AND NEWS. FIFTH YEAR. On January 2, 1861, will be commenced a new volume (V) of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL; and in future the numbers issued before the first and last days of each year will constitute a complete volume, of convenient size for reading, and each number will contain a most entertaining and instructive repository of reading matter, calculated to interest all readers of British origin. The SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, though decidedly international in its constant efforts to promote personal prosperity throughout the people of Great Britain and America, has yet emphatically identified itself with the opinions and feelings of the Scotch people, and its pages are replete with the most interesting and valuable information of the progress of the Scotch people in America; and it is a distinguished feature of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, that it is the only paper published in America, which is devoted to the interests of the Scotch people, and which is published in the Scotch language, and which is published in the Scotch language, and which is published in the Scotch language.

Miscellaneous. What tree is not known by its fruit? The boot-tree. If you wished a doctor of decency to play to you on the violin, how would you express your wish? Fiddle-dee-dee D.D. 'A man who maliciously set fire to a barn,' said Mr. Slowly, 'and burn up twenty cows, ought to be kicked to death by a jackass, and I'd like to do it.' Slow is very severe sometimes. A physician stopped at the shop of a country apothecary, and inquired for a pharmacopoeia. 'Sir,' said the apothecary, 'I know of no such farmer living about these parts.'

THE first operation with dead pig is to take off the head, pretty well to the shoulders, by cutting the flesh with a sharp knife, and the bone with an axe. Cut off the ears close as possible; divide the jaws from the upper part of the head, on a line with the mouth, by knife and axe. These are excellent salted and smoked, or they may go into 'head cheese.' This is made of the upper part of the head, with the 'soise,' or else it goes into the oven for 'baked pig's head,' in which case two inches of the snout must be cut off the nose. The next cut is to sever the ribs close to the backbone along each side, and take out the backbone for roasting. Now cut the leaf-fat loose from the ribs forward, and seize it with a strong grip and pull it and the kidney out and then, with a knife inserted under the ribs, cut them loose with a little meat as possible. Now cut off both hams, and then cut them apart, taking out the tail-piece wedge-shaped, and trim the hams to a handsome shape, with only a short leg on each. Now cut the shoulders off in the same way, taking out quite a chunk of fat meat of the back between them. Then cut up the sides if wanted for pickled pork, in sizes to suit; if intended for 'side bacon,' leave them whole in two pieces. If your pig is not large, and you want fresh roasts, you need not take out the backbone, but cut it with portions of the ribs and sides into suitable sized roasting pieces. If your pig is very fat, and as lard is worth more than pork, trim the joints and sides closely, and cut it up fine for lard. These with the leaf fat must be put into a kettle over a slow fire, so as not to burn, without water, and cooked till all the water is wholly evaporated, and the scraps thoroughly cooked. Such lard will keep sweet.
