The acceptance of tenders for she cattle shed is postponed "until the committee is assured of baving "sufficient funds to meet the expense of "permanent building." Perhaps the most desirable way in which the permanent buildings could be erected would be as an annexe to the present structure, which is far too small for the merensing demands of the annual Provincial Pairs. It is grati-fying to see that increased attention has been given to the departments of Arts and Manufactures. Nearly $3,000 are to be given in prizes in these two departments.

This is much in excess of former years and will be received with favor. Mechanical department of all the previous Agricultural Perhaps this, in a measure, arose from the name of the Exhibition. and the object for which the Board was originally created. Some sixteen year ago the manufactures of the Province Now it i created. Some sixteen years were scarcely worth noticing. Now it is different; and each successive year shows an improvement on that which went before And the fact that the Board of Agri-ture and the local committee have atly recognised this will tend to stimulate the manufacturers of the Prowince to still greater exertions. We trust that the exhibition to be held here in the ensuing September will bear no sort of comparison, so far as manufactures are concerned, to those of previous years. Every manufacturer ought to be prepared to send something. As in Manufactures so in Arts. The Fine Arts especially have of late had more votaries than formerly. This is a natural consequence of an advancing state of refinement. It must be confessed that in the matter of paintings the past exhibiin the matter of pantings the past exhibi-tions have presended a sorry show; but we expect somewhat better things in Sep-tember next. It is to be hoped that a suitable place for the exhibition of paint ings will be provided. We have already pointed out the unsuitableness of the gal-lery of the present building for this pur-pose. Hardly a worse place for an exhibition of pictures could be conceived. The gallery will be sufficiently taken up with ladies' work and other articles of that nature; and no pictures should be allowed to be hung there. We trust the committee will consider this matter. It is of ome importance, and the more so as the ist of prizes has been considerably in creased this year.

Respecting the comparative claims of the two candidates, there can scarcely be a difference of opinion, at least among those who can view the matter is an unpredjudiced light. In busi ness talent, shrewdness, and energy of character—the only grounds on which we can institute a comparison between them-Mr. Gamble is at least fully equal to his opponent; while in every other respect he is vastly superior. His long residence in this country has rendered him thoroughly conversant with its affairs; and intimately acquainted with its wants and resources. He is well known among the farming community, and generally respect room. He states that on his return home and by those with whom his busi-late from work, he was informed that some ness brings him in contact. We have not yet seen his address, but his career while holding a seat in the House of Assembly may serve as a pretty good criterion as to the line of policy he may be expected that the light on the table had been put out.

It was almost dark in the room, but I could see somebody standing between the little sons will doubtless recollect the independent excited that I did not think of its being my course he pursued on the subject of wife-remembering what I had told her Separate Schools. Fox Hunt Near Toronto. [To the Editor of the York Herald.]

Sir-The fox hunt, as announced

came off on Wednesday last, and a miserable affair it was. At 10 orders as of yore. After conversing with number of carriages, a multitude of common at the head of Bathurst St. in the north western part of the city Ah were anxious for the start -Some wished to exhibit their horse manship to advantage, while others were desirous to hear the baying of the bounds. Finally a start was made for a field about a mile outside the city limits, on the road to Weston. The first victim of the day's sport, was then uncaged. -He ran about 200 yards and poked his pose into the corner of a snake bounds and badly worried. An of ficer's servant soon came to the rescue, and carried the feightful animal by the tail to Cant Masson As the for was unable to run fur ther, a ring was formed by the crowd round the gallant captain, and the dogs to witness the execution of poor Reynard. That part of the programme was performed in rather a barbarous manner. A contest then ensued between poor foxy and his relentless pursuers, the hounds being too cowardly to dispatch him at once. Finding that his foxship was likely to survive the attack of the dogs, Capt. Massey, who showed himself to be quite expert in his profession, knocked the poor animal on the head until quite hors de combat, and unable to offer any further resistance; the gallant coptain remarking at the same time, 'this is the first fox I ever had to kill.' The second intended victim was then started, and made tracks in such a burry that in a giffy he was 'nowhere; owing to a defect in the nasal acuteness of the useless bounds, made good his escape to parts unknown!

-for all I know, he may be running There were two charming young ladies on horseback who graced the sport with their presence, one of whom was very conspicuous—having a white feather in her hat—as she galloped through hill and dale after the bounds, attended by her faithful gallant. It lent a magic charm to the fun, thus to see young nymphs enjoying the sports of the chase. The footmen, very goodnaturedly, leveded the fences with the ground that the horsemen migh: get over more easily. The hunters after 'beating about the bush,' re-'urned to town about two o'clock. Some of the norseman were over flowing with gratitude, that their heads remained in the same position they occupied in the morning. One man was unhorsed while try ing to force his steed over a linke brook about 3 or 4 feet wide, and came very nigh being thrown head-first into it by the animal elevating his beels rather too high in the etherial element.
